

Senate President Threatens To Shear Collier of Power

Ennis Accuses Finance Committee Chief of Attempting To Block Tax Reform Action.

SEEKS TO AVERT EXTRA SESSION

Collier Denies Charges and Asserts He Will Fight Governor's Program on Floor.

Senator J. C. Collier, of the 22nd district, may be shorn of his power to defeat legislation carrying out the governor's program, it was announced Wednesday by President Howard Ennis, of the senate. Unless Senator Collier agrees to give all measures referred to the finance committee, of which he is chairman, full hearing and prompt reports to the senate, President Ennis said he will refer all tax matters to another committee.

Furthermore, if Senator Collier persists in his intention to form his "sales tax bloc" he will encounter the strenuous opposition of President Ennis, who said he will throw all his power against him to avoid an extra session.

"There will be no bloc in legislation before the senate," said President Ennis. "In conformity with rules of the senate and wishes of the people of Georgia, I shall endeavor to use all my power to avoid an extra session."

To Press for Action.

"I will endeavor to have considered on the floor of the senate every piece of legislation towards the program of progress for greater Georgia."

"Certainly, no one can prevent the progress and the usual work of the senate."

"Unless Senator Collier will agree that all matters referred to the finance committee shall have full and free consideration and prompt reports to the floor, I shall refer all tax matters to another committee of my own choosing. I do not propose to have the bills embodying the governor's program pigeon-holed."

Answering President Ennis, Senator Collier declared in a statement that he reserves the right to fight any measure he sees fit on the floor of the senate, and that so far as the finance committee is concerned, any and all matters referred to it will receive prompt and unbiased consideration and will be promptly reported back to the senate.

"My position as chairman of the finance committee will not affect any legislation coming into my hands, although my views might differ from those of Governor Walker," Senator Collier said, "but I will jeopardize the integrity of the president of the senate or any member of the finance committee, but I do reserve the right to speak my views on legislation before the members of the senate."

Mr. Collier said that he is opposed to Governor Walker's income tax program for the reason that he does not believe it for the best interests of the state to have an income tax at this crucial moment."

Personally, he said, he esteems Governor Walker and President Ennis highly. There is no income tax legislation before the committee at the present time, and there has not been in the past, he pointed out.

"No committee of the assembly has handled its business more promptly than the finance committee, and all

FARMERS SAFELY 'CONVALESCING'

Agriculture Is 'Gradually Getting House in Order Again,' Jardine Asserts After Long Trip.

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—Agriculture is "safely convalescing," Secretary Jardine declared today in a review of the situation as seen from his eight weeks' western tour.

Farmers are getting out of the "shadow of bankruptcy," he asserted, and there is a return of confidence. In short, he added, agriculture appears to be "gradually getting its house in order again," after the post-war disruption.

Declaring the farmers themselves were competent to work out their own problems, he said that if he got the right impression, there will not be any great demand for farm legislation. Many of the farmers told him "to let it alone, as things were going along pretty well."

"Cattle and hog men are better off than they have been since 1920 and I didn't see any sheepmen down at the mouth," he declared.

"Conditions in the corn belt are reversed from what they were a year ago, when hogs were still cheap and corn a poor and expensive crop. Inventions are for a large cotton crop and a favorable income in the belt as a whole."

"There are certain dark spots, however, in the general agricultural picture."

Nursing Babe Dies When Bee Stings Mother

Child Loses Consciousness Immediately After Insect Stings Mother's Breast.

Peterboro, Ont., July 22.—(AP)—The shock of a bee sting, transmitted from Mrs. Ethel Chapman, of Chilliwick, B. C., to her three-month-old baby which she was nursing caused its death, Dr. Cronk, of Belleville, said today.

Immediately after the bee had stung the mother's breast, the child lost consciousness and died within an hour.

AMERICAN MAN DIES OF BEE STING

Americus, Ga., July 22.—(Special.)—As a result of being stung on the right arm by a bee Tuesday afternoon, R. W. Knox, 32, prominent lumberman of Thomaston, died at 9 o'clock this morning at the local hospital. Knox, with a companion, was on his way to Americus when he was stung by the bee. Fifteen minutes after the insect had injected its poison, Knox fainted and remained unconscious until he died.

Physicians declare Knox's case to be most unusual, none of like nature being on record in any of the medical journals.

He is survived by his widow; three sons, Robert, Frank and Lee; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Knox; three sisters, Mrs. R. B. Hancock, Mrs. W. P. Allen and Miss Geraldine Knox, all of Thomaston.

Funeral services will be held Friday at the Methodist church at Thomaston, with interment in the Thomaston cemetery.

C. B. Harris, who shot and seriously wounded his wife during a domestic quarrel at their home, 310 Central avenue, Tuesday night; his wife and their young son. Harris was only slightly wounded when he attempted suicide. Physicians at Grady hospital Wednesday announced that Mrs. Harris would probably recover from her wounds, and the husband expressed unbounded joy when this news was brought to him in his cell at police headquarters.

APPROPRIATIONS BILL NOW READY TO GO TO HOUSE

Committee Ends Consideration, Maintaining Policy of Following Budget Recommendations.

Continuing its policy of adhering to recommendations of the state budget commission in voting practically all funds for state institutions, the appropriations committee of the house completed consideration of the general appropriations act.

The measure is now ready for submission to the house, but no definite information was available as to when it will be formally introduced. It was considered likely that Chairman Fernor Barrett, of the committee, would hold up the bill for a few days in order to check all figures carefully and to give any institutions which may not have appeared before it an opportunity to file related requests for funds. In this event it will be Friday or next Monday before the bill comes before the house for its consideration.

Practically all appropriations acted on by the committee Wednesday were exactly the same as recommended by the state budget committee, which in turn closely followed appropriations given the different state departments and institutions for the past few years.

Few Increases Made.

Every change made by the committee Wednesday was in the form of increases to the appropriations bill of 1923.

The committee voted the same maintenance appropriation for the Georgia School of Technology that it received in the last appropriation measure.

The University of Georgia was awarded a fund of $145,000, which also was the same as it received last year.

The State College of Agriculture was voted $110,000, as compared to the fund of $707,000 it received formerly.

Summer School Increase.

The University of Georgia summer school maintenance fund was increased from $6,000 to $10,000.

The school for mental defectives at Augusta, was given $35,000, last year it having received only $25,000.

The state military department was voted a maintenance fund of $40,000, being $15,000 more than it received last year. In addition, a special fund

FORD BID FOR SHIPS MAY BE THROWN OUT UPON LEGAL GROUND

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—Possibility that the bid of $1,706,000 by Henry Ford for purchase of 200 shipping board vessels for scrapping may be thrown out, on the ground that his sales made for junking would be contrary to the merchant marine act, is understood to have developed today with the dispatch of a message to President Coolidge by Chairman O'Connor, asking that the attorney general rule on the question.

Mr. O'Connor would not admit that such a message had been sent, saying any announcement would have to come from Swamscott.

J.A. Langford Given 30 Days For Contempt

Continues Work of Dipping Horses and Mules Despite Injunction.

Savannah, Ga., July 22.—(Special.)—J. A. Langford, agent for State Veterinarian Peter F. Bahnen, has been adjudged in contempt of court and sentenced to 30 days in jail for refusing to cease his work of dipping horses and mules on St. Catherine's island, a large island off the Georgia coast.

Dr. Bahnen had ordered that all horses and cattle on the island be dipped to prevent cattle tick, but there was much opposition to the order. Some days ago an injunction was secured against Langford, Bahnen's agent, to prevent him from dipping horses and cattle on the island, on the ground that it was injurious to the stock, but the agent refused to discontinue his work when notified by a lawyer of the injunction.

Langford was then arrested and taken before Judge Peter F. Meldrum, of the Chatham superior court, who had issued the original injunction. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail for contempt of court, but filed notice of appeal and is now out on a $500 bond.

SISTER-IN-LAW SHOT BY BRUNSWICK MAN WHO KILLS HIMSELF

Waynesville, Ga., July 22.—Henry Gibson today shot and killed Mrs. Dan Gibson, his sister-in-law, and then killed himself with a revolver.

Persons investigating the shooting could ascertain no previous trouble between the two and the opinion was advanced that Gibson had shot while temporarily insane.

He used a double-barreled shotgun.

TAX EQUALIZATION REPEAL APPROVED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Beggars Who Make $5 to $11 Daily Bemoan Poor 'Business'

COMPETITION WORRIES CHICAGO MENDICANTS

Chicago, July 22.—(AP)—Chicago beggars receive from $5 to more than $11 a day, and they are complaining because "business" is falling off owing to competition.

The figures were made public tonight by R. H. Freund, who conducted an investigation for the social service administration of the University of Chicago.

The incomes ran as high as $20 a day. Freund observed 10 Chicago beggars for a total of 647 minutes and saw them receive 420 contributions. He estimated the average contribution at seven cents and found them to be receiving $2.42 cents an hour. For an eight hour day, he estimated this group received $11.46 each.

Forty-three mendicants interviewed showed an average of $210 to $250 a day for the group. "Old timers," however, were indignant in their assertions that beggars from other cities are usurping the field and that "business" is being ruined by so many entering it. Receipts two years ago were much larger.

Because of migratory habits, no estimate as to the number of beggars in the city was given.

NEAL PREPARING SCOPES RECORDS FOR APPEAL CASE

End of Dayton Trial Means Beginning of Hard Work for Chief of Defense Counsel.

Dayton, Tenn., July 22.—(AP)—Close of the "Scopes case" brought only extra work for John R. Neal, chief counsel for the defense. His was the task of preparing the record of the conviction of the 24-year-old school teacher, on a charge of teaching evolution theories in the public schools, for submission to the supreme court. As he began his work today he estimated that one week would be required in getting the document ready for the printer.

With Scopes convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $100, the scene shifted from Dayton to Knoxville, where the supreme court hears cases from East Tennessee in September. The Tennessee supreme court meets in Knoxville, Nashville and Jackson and failure to be heard on the "evolution issue" in September would result in a delay of one year.

Lawyers yesterday suggested a bare possibility that the case might have to go to an appellate court before reaching the supreme court under an act of the last legislature expanding the power of the court of appeals to hear certain cases formerly considered by the supreme court. It was considered unlikely, however, that the Scopes case would be sidetracked before reaching the state's highest tribunal.

In connection with the perfection of the appeal it was pointed out that a new lineup of lawyers may be found when the case is heard in Knoxville. John R. Neal, as senior counsel, was expected to represent the defense but his associates may not be those who appeared in the trial court. Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, an active figure in the case before the trial at Dayton, was not present here but his associates pointed out that he had not withdrawn and was a member of defense counsel. Asked if Mr. Colby would make an argument before the supreme court, Dr. Neal said that while he was not prepared to announce who would speak for the defense at Knoxville, Mr. Colby was "still in the case."

EVOLUTION FIGHT HITS WASHINGTON IN COURT ACTION

Rider to Appropriation Bill Precipitates Battle on Teaching of Scientific Theories in Schools.

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—An action which may throw the federal evolution question into the federal courts for judicial determination as to whether the teaching of this scientific theory inculcates disrespect for the Holy Bible was begun here today by Loren H. Wittner, a government employee.

The vehicle employed is a rider to the 1925 District of Columbia appropriation bill which provides that "no part of this sum (for the public schools) shall be available for the salary of any superintendent who permits the teaching, or any teacher who teaches disrespect for the Holy Bible."

The action is in the nature of an injunction proceeding directed at the auditor and disbursing officer of the District of Columbia, and Frank White, treasurer of the United States, to prohibit them from making further payments of salaries to Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and W. P. Hay, head of the department of biology and chemistry in the Washington high schools.

Immediately upon the filing of the proceedings, Justice Siddons of the District of Columbia supreme court, issued a rule on the two district officials, Daniel J. Donovan and James R. Lueby, and Mr. White, directing them to appear July 28 to show cause why an injunction should not issue against them.

In his petition, Wittner sets forth that he brings the suit in his own right as a taxpayer. After the filing of the suit, Attorney Dolby said he was a fundamentalist and that he was acting for himself. He is represented by Attorneys B. H. Dolby and J. N. Forrestad, young Washington lawyers.

Explaining that the case here differs widely from that tried at Dayton, Attorney Dolby said that local courts will be asked to interpret the words "disrespect for the Holy Bible" and that this should allow a

BROTHER HOLDS FATE OF SCOTT

Unless Robert Scott Gives Up to Authorities, Russell Scott Must Die, Is Edict.

Chicago, July 22.—(AP)—Only the surrender and confession of Robert Scott can save his brother Russell, from the noose, dangling ready for his execution Friday morning.

Unless Robert returns Governor Small has indicated the will be no further reprieve to snatch Russell from the gallows as he was saved last Friday. Russell, in the county jail death cell, watching the clock mark the passing of his remaining hours of life, bases his only hope on his brother.

"If Robert would only surrender and confess I'm sure my life would be saved," he said.

The return of the brother also is the objective of the frenzied efforts of Scott's relatives and friends who have left no stone unturned in efforts to save him. Robert's whereabouts are unknown.

Radio appeals to him will be made by Scott's wife, Catherine, and by his aged father. They will augment wire pleas sent by the family to President Coolidge, urging that the executive ask the governor for leniency.

A nation-wide campaign to find the missing brother is planned by a

Echo of Scopes Case Is Heard in Committee

Question Relating to Belief in Bible Drives Direct Answer.

An echo of the famous Scopes trial was heard in general judiciary committee No. 1 of the house Wednesday afternoon, when the question of the personal belief of members of the committee in the Bible was injected into a discussion on a bill to amend divorce laws of the state, which was approved.

Just as William Jennings Bryan did in the famous evolution trial in Tennessee, the member asked as to his religious belief insisted on answering although the chair had ruled the question out of order.

The bill under consideration provides that total insanity for a period of five years by either party to a marriage shall be grounds for divorce. While Representative Parker New, of Laurens, was speaking on the bill, the question was raised as to what grounds of divorce are mentioned in the Bible.

Representative J. O. Wood, of Fulton county, promptly asked the speaker: "Do you believe in the Bible?"

While Representative New insisted on answering, though the question had been ruled out by Chairman Culpepper.

"I will answer the gentleman by saying that I have been a member of the church ever since childhood, though I lay no claims to being a strong churchman," he said. "I know also that the gentleman asking the question is a church member. I believe in God and read the Bible."

Later in the debate, when Representative Frank Hooper, of Fulton, was speaking on the bill, he stated

'EVOLUTION MAMA' LATEST ATLANTA CREATION OF SONG

Rolled hose, balloon breeches—or evolution—Atlanta sees the style.

While Clarence Darrow and William Jennings Bryan were re-enacting the flood in Dayton, the minds of a pair of dusky troubadours of Decatur street were composing a musical epic of the famous Scopes case.

Wednesday night they strolled into police station with banjo and guitar and made their debut with the new lay before a crowd of appreciative call officers.

The name of the song was: "Evolution Mama, Don't You Monkey With Me."

HOUSE COMMITTEE FAVORS MEASURE BY VOTE OF 13 TO 3

Proposal To Revise Levy on Corporations Is Referred to Subcommittee for Study.

INSURANCE TAX CHARGE FAVORED

8-Cent Tax on Lubricating Oils Is Adversed by Ways and Means Committee.

By a vote of 16 to 3 the house committee on ways and means Wednesday afternoon approved a measure to repeal the state tax equalization law.

The bill was introduced in the house early in the session by Representatives Stovall, of Elbert, and McClure, of Walker. Both authors appeared before the committee at its meeting Wednesday and spoke briefly in support of the measure. Little opposition developed and the favorable vote was taken after short general discussion.

A number of other bills of importance were discussed at the committee meeting. One, providing for a tax of 8 cents per gallon on lubricating oils, was opposed by prominent figures in the oil business in Georgia, who pointed out that they sold a great deal of lubricating oil at as low as 10 cents per gallon, and that on this class of goods the proposed tax would amount to 80 per cent of the sales price.

The bill was adversed on vote of the committee.

The committee reported favorably a measure requiring insurance agents to pay their occupational taxes direct to the comptroller general instead of to tax collectors of various counties as is done at present. The claim was advanced that this change will raise revenues derived from insurance agents' occupational taxes from $30,250—the amount collected last year—to approximately $60,000. The measure also provides for employment of an insurance clerk in the office of the comptroller.

Other bills, providing for revision of the state taxes on foreign and domestic corporations, to be substituted for the corporation tax section in the general tax act, were laid before the committee by Assistant Attorney General T. K. Gress, who stated that he had prepared a bill to the request of members of the house.

These substitute measures were referred to a subcommittee of the ways and means committee, which also was charged with study and report on the general tax act, introduced in skeleton form in the house Wednesday.

They proposed to reduce taxes on corporations, but the comptroller's office claimed that they will result in increased state revenue by bringing in corporations affected on the tax books.

There was some discussion at the meeting of certain sections of the tax act adopted by the last legislature which have been declared unconstitutional since their enactment, but no action was taken and the sections in

DAWES RENEWS FIGHT UPON SENATE'S RULES

Denver, Colo., July 22.—(AP)—Between jumps that will lead him variously from Denver to Cheyenne to Wagonwheel Gap, thence to Omaha and back to Chicago, Vice President Dawes tonight continued his attack on the present senate rules and advocated their change. A provision that would enable the majority, instead of two-thirds of the senate, to bring debate to a close, was stressed in an address in Denver's municipal auditorium.

The station plaza was jammed as the vice president emerged from the train sheds smoking his famous pipe and posed for a few pictures. Proceeding to his hotel, Mr. Dawes insisted upon snatching his daily afternoon nap before keeping a dinner engagement at the Denver club. From dinner, the vice president proceeded to the auditorium, where he again launched an attack on the senate rules.

Speaking of the proposal to adopt the two-thirds rule, Mr. Dawes said: "This provision would be so drawn that it would not prevent any senator from being fully heard on any question, but would prevent a majority or an individual senator from prolonging the debate in order to destroy the constitutional right of the majority to legislate," the vice president said. After speaking here tonight, Mr. Dawes will go to Cheyenne, Wyo., Friday to witness the last day of one of the "disappearing west's" greatest spectacles—the frontier day celebration. There, too, Mr. Dawes will be inducted into the Sioux Indian tribe, together with Governor Nellie Taylor Ross, of Wyoming, as an honorary member.

Baptist Pastor Prays Darrow May See Light as Did St. Paul

Mandeville, La., July 22.—(AP)—Praying that a "blinding light" may cross the path of Clarence Darrow as it did that of Paul, the apostle, and invoking God's blessing on William Jennings Bryan, the Reverend Robert Lee, pastor of the First Baptist church, New Orleans, formally opened the Louisiana Baptist encampment here tonight.

Characterizing the chief counsel for the defense in the Scopes trial as "agnosticism's leading exponent," and William Jennings Bryan as the "vindicator of revealed religion," Dr. Lee made a plea for the preservation of revealed religion as handed down by the Bible.

In connection with his visit to Cheyenne, members of his party today told an interesting story of a letter he received from General John J. Pershing, who advised him in a letter, it was said, that it was all right to "ride the senate," but not to let the Cheyenne folk get him astride a bucking broncho.

He said the present generation has not shaken the shackles of fickleness, but on the contrary, is as fickle as any peoples of ancient times.

"I would rather hear Balaam's ass ask questions about certain matters than to hear some teachers, and even preachers, who from their pulpits or desks define God as an impersonal something, and turn as a result of the operation of natural laws," he concluded.

Dr. E. D. Solomon, of Shreveport, corresponding secretary of the Baptist encampment, declared that Scopes' defender would "yet see in Jesus Christ a Saviour and would become as ardent in his service to revealed religion as he now is to science."

Two were killed, three more received injuries which it is believed will prove fatal, three others were seriously injured, and two escaped after the automobile in which they were speeding through the city this evening crashed into an iron trolley pole as the driver sought to escape a pursuing police patrol.

WILSON ROAD MEET AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Milledgeville, Ga., July 22.—(Special.)—Preparations are being made for one of the biggest highway meetings ever held in the state here tomorrow. The Milledgeville chamber of commerce and Kiwanis club will be joint hosts to the annual convention of the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Highway association on the first anniversary of its founding.

The county commissioners of the counties through which the highway passes will meet in the Baldwin county courthouse at 11 o'clock for a business meeting.

The highway association will meet at 12 o'clock with George H. Carswell, of Irwinton, president of the association, presiding. Mayor J. H. Ennis, of Milledgeville, president of the Georgia senate, is vice president of the organization, and T. A. Proctor, of Dublin, secretary. Congressman W. W. Larsen, of Dublin, and W. T. Anderson, of Macon, are among the speakers. The Georgia highway commission has been invited to attend.

A barbecue dinner will be served on the campus of the Georgia State College for Women at noon. Arrangements for making the fee will be made by the local chamber of commerce, and E. E. Bell, is chairman of the reception committee.

Officers of the Wilson Memorial Highway association will be elected at this meeting.

This organization is not to be confused with the recent movement to form a highway association of the same name sponsoring a highway running from Augusta to Waycross.

Thursday marks one year from date of the organization of this memorial association in Dublin, when permission was granted by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to use the former president's name for the route running from Washington, D. C., to Jacksonville, Fla., via Hartwell, Athens, Madison, Eatonton, Milledgeville, Irwinton, Dublin, Lumber City and Waycross.

The association still has in possession the letter received from Mrs. Wilson. Plans looking to the incorporation of the highway association will be considered at the meeting Thursday.

AMENDOLA ATTACK AROUSES ITALIANS

Rome, July 22.—(AP)—The members of the Aventine opposition who have been bitter in their denunciation of the fascist government, since it took over the reins of government in Italy, are aroused over the attack made on their leader, Deputy Amendola, Monday night.

Only by the intervention of police and fascist authorities was Deputy Amendola saved from a mob of about 1,000 fascists, who for five hours stormed the hotel where he was staying at the resort of Montecatini. He was spirited away from the hotel, but as soon as the escort withdrew, he was waylaid by a band of unknown men and severely beaten with clubs.

Not since the sensational disappearance of the Socialist deputy, Matteotti a year ago, and the furore created when it was learned he had been assassinated, had such an impression been caused, both in government and opposition circles.

Premier Mussolini in an official account of the attack on the opposition leader declares that every effort to protect him was made by the authorities.

The attack is considered to be especially significant, coming as it did only a few days after the publication of a document drawn up by the Aventine opposition, purporting to prove that the murder of Deputy Matteotti and aggressions against various deputies were carried out with the knowledge of Premier Mussolini and the government and that the crimes were organized in order to punish the deputies for their opposition to the present regime.

Only recently the press censor permitted a newspaper, Il Mondo, controlled by Signor Amendola to print a scathing denunciation of the government.

GOMES REFUSES URGE TO DISSOLVE GOVERNING BODY

Lisbon, Portugal, July 22.—(AP)—President Gomes has refused to dissolve parliament, as requested by Antonio da Silva, who resigned as premier yesterday. Among those mentioned for the premiership are former President Bernardino Machado, former Premier Alvaro Xavier Castro and former Premier Domingos Pereira.

It is reported that former Premier da Silva and Domingos Pereira, leader of the radical party, may fight a duel because of offense taken by da Silva at remarks made by the radical leader.

Wilbur Discusses Preparedness Plan in Portland Speech

Portland, Ore., July 22.—(AP)—Major problems of national naval defense preparedness were discussed by Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, in addressing public officials and prominent citizens at a banquet given in his honor here. Secretary Wilbur assured his hosts, who have urged without immediate success the recommendation of his department of early development of Tongue Point naval base, that in his opinion the carrying out of the provisions of the disarmament treaty had rendered impossible invasion by an enemy force of the territory of the United States.

"There is not a man in the navy but who feels the navy should be able to defeat any foreign power attacking us before the fleet of that power could drop a single projectile on our shores, and every man is cooperating to make that belief a certainty," he said.

"The disarmament treaty has made it impossible for any navy to print either the east or west coast with any hope of facilitating invasion."

Secretary Wilbur then told of the naval development of that devoted to aircraft protection in particular.

"There has been much discussion as to whether aircraft will do away with surface ships," he said. "Most of the discussion has centered on the subject of danger from dropping bombs, but I will say that it is my opinion that modern naval engagements will be between great fleets."

Glasses with their heavy horn rims fitted to match the hat or gown of the well dressed woman have appeared in London this spring.

Scopes Would Devote Life To Study of Evolution

THEORY WHICH BROUGHT TRIAL FASCINATES YOUTH

BY RAYMOND CLAPETER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
Dayton, Tenn., July 22.—Tennessee's most famous criminal wants to devote his life to the cause to which he has thus far merely loaned his name. Young Scopes has indicated to intimate friends that he wants to study biology as a life work and quiet efforts are under way to obtain for him a scholarship in some university of high standing so that he may pursue post-graduate work.

During this trial there have been wholesale quantities of drivel written about the figure-head, Scopes, and he has been represented as almost everything from a rather dumb young fellow to a figure of super-intelligence. But he has been under close observation for two weeks and the verdict of this writer and most others who have reported the trial is that he is a highly intelligent, alert young man who wants a chance to make something of himself, but who has the level-headedness and the good taste not to go about it by commercializing his fame to sell Florida real estate or deliver chautauque lectures. He wants to make a reputation for himself on his merits, outside of the accidental fame which this trial has brought to him. Hence his desire to continue scientific study.

Young Scopes wandered around the empty Dayton streets and loafed around the soda fountain in Robinson's drug store as he did before his arrest. He thought of using him as the victim of a test case. He probably will spend a few days visiting his chief counsel, Dr. John R. Neal, at Rhea Springs. Later he will visit his father at Paducah, Ky., and probably will make a brief trip to New York after that.

Dayton merchants pulled down their welcome signs Wednesday and the town quickly took up its placid ways again. But Dayton will never be the same again. Nor will the "furriers" who visited Dayton during the trial. The experience was broadening for both. Despite the bitterness with which the trial was fought personal relations always were pleasant outside of the courtroom. The only one who really got mad here was Bryan. But Darrow and the local attorneys ended up good friends.

The friendly atmosphere was fully manifest at a dance given to the town and the visiting lawyers by the nobility of Rhea Springs. Darrow and the local attorneys ended up good friends.

Van Sweringen and Lawyer In Warm Tilt Over Profits From Nickel Plate Merger

Exception Taken by Leader of Merger Project to Conclusions Drawn by Opposing Attorney.

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—Prospective profits for the Van Sweringen interests from the Nickel Plate railroad merger project formed the basis of a hotly disputed and temporary representation today before the Interstate Commerce commission.

In cross-examining O. P. Van Sweringen, leader of the merger project, H. W. Anderson, counsel for protesting minority stockholders, produced a tabulation of original costs and potential values of converted railroad securities which he described over the witness' protest as a profit summation.

Between the exchanges of questions and answers, the protests of counsel and the rulings of Commissioner Meyer, presiding, the hearing was thrown into confusion. Mr. Anderson finally withdrew the document from the record, leaving copies with his opposition for overnight study, but only after Mr. Van Sweringen had entered emphatic denial to the detail and conclusion before him. Arguments were still in progress when adjournment for the day was announced.

Huge Profit Indicated.

In his questions, Mr. Anderson indicated that an estimate of $52,355,000 had been placed upon the actual cost to the Van Sweringen group of the extensive holdings of railroad securities they had accumulated prior to the merger; that the conversion of these securities under the merger plan would give them par value of new Nickel Plate company stock to the amount of $47,882,501 in preferred and $3,505,044 in common.

"I don't agree with this at all," Mr. Van Sweringen protested. "All of it is very misleading, just as all these references to 'paper' profits are misleading. Profits, to my way of thinking, are a very different thing."

W. A. Colston, and later Newton D. Baker, the Van Sweringen attorney, protested that the request that the witness make computation was objectionable. Mr. Colston added that there was a "patent" error of $16,000,000 in one column of the tabulation, drawing a reproof from Mr. Anderson that every item "had been checked and made up from testimony in the case." Commissioner Meyer ruled that Mr. Van Sweringen, who exclaimed during the clash that "I can tell them it's wrong," might have the right to study the figures, adding later that they were not in the record of the commission.

Demands All Records.

Mr. Anderson, when the session ended, had made demands for all the records and minutes of the boards of directors of the Pere Marquette, Erie, and Ohio, and Nickel Plate railroads touching the merger plan and the records of the committee, which now holds deposits of stock consenting to the merger.

During his frequent clashes with Mr. Van Sweringen, Mr. Anderson sought to associate J. P. Morgan and company with the merger plan and went into computations of possible profits.

Taking an estimate of the effect of the Van Sweringen plan, Mr. Anderson suggested that common stock of the Nickel Plate company would be "worth 186 per share."

"Yes—on your assumption," Mr. Van Sweringen said.

Winding up a recalculation of the Van Sweringen holdings of Erie railroad stock, the attorney said:

Clashes with Attorney.

"On this basis, you will receive an annual income of $1,160,000 from the conversion of Erie securities, which now pay nothing. That will be a charge on the public resulting from this merger. Do you regard that as in the public interests?" "If I had not so regarded it, I would not have embarked on this enterprise," Mr. Van Sweringen retorted, adding: "I don't like your statement as to a charge on the public. Railroads are entitled to earn big money on their property value and this stock is entitled to dividends if the financial structure is proper."

Mr. Anderson asked repeatedly what benefits the public interest might obtain from the merger, and differences developed as the witness sought to answer. "Congress has prescribed that the railroads shall be grouped," Mr. Van Sweringen said at one point, "and I believe that what I have proposed is in keeping with that expression."

MACHINERY PLACED TO BEGIN PAVING ON DIXIE HIGHWAY

Waycross, Ga., July 22.—(Special.) Heavy machinery and equipment to be used on the 17-mile stretch of Dixie highway, south of Waycross, to be hard-surfaced, has arrived and work will start immediately.

The preparation of the base of the road will be in charge of the state highway department, the hard-surfacing to be done by S. E. Finley, contractor, of Atlanta. The surfacing will start at a point seven miles from Waycross, where the present hard surface road ends and will connect with the new surface now under construction in Charlton county. With the completion of these two projects, a hard-surfaced road will extend from Waycross to Jacksonville, a distance of approximately 76 miles.

It will be necessary to conduct several shoring operations during the work of construction, but the highway department promises that these detours will be kept in good order, and that motorists using the road will suffer as little inconvenience as possible.

Columbus Post Boosts Hill for Committeeman From State of Georgia

Columbus, Ga., July 22.—Terrell W. Hill, commander of the Charles S. Harrison post, of Columbus, will be the local legionnaires' candidate for national executive committeeman from Georgia, it was decided at a meeting last night, when a resolution of endorsement was unanimously adopted.

The Columbus legion will place Hill's name before the Rome convention next month. The local post commander won a distinguished service cross in France, being a lieutenant of infantry and wounded in the Argonne. Asa W. Candler, Jr., of Atlanta, is the present Georgia national executive committeeman.

A report at the meeting showed that the Harrison post has 1,138 members, the largest in the south and ranking seventh in the world, according to officials.

GOOD ROADS MEET IS HELD IN ROME

BY O. J. WILLOUGHBY.
Editor Constitution Highway Dept.
Rome, Ga., July 22.—Representatives from nearly every point in north Georgia and northeast Alabama, attended the good roads meeting, sponsored by the Rome chamber of commerce today and plans were made for the active promotion of a number of bonding zones in the event of failure of the legislature to pass an enabling act to submit a state bond issue for the approval of the people.

James A. Holloman, of Atlanta, made the principal address at a joint meeting of all of the representatives, held in the country club building. He vigorously attested a strong state sentiment for good roads and stated that in his opinion, any measure submitted by the legislature that would enable Georgia to build a system of good roads would be satisfactory to the people.

Statewide Sentiment.
"A system of good roads that will provide a year-round automobile transportation system is the very foundation on which Georgia's greatest era of prosperity is to be built, and there is now a sentiment all over the state in favor of using the state's power to build such a system of roads," declared Mr. Holloman.

With equal emphasis Mr. Holloman protested the conversion of gasoline and automobile license taxes to any purpose other than the construction and maintenance of roads, stating that these taxes are paid by the motorists in addition to the taxes on the automobiles themselves. He urged that the state should not impose upon other citizens and that to divert them from the highways was manifestly unfair, no matter how worthy the cause. He pointed out that the prominent citizen of northwest Georgia and president of the Rome chamber of commerce, acted as chairman of the general meeting and strongly urged a greater "state sentiment."

"Let's lay aside our localism and pull together for a greater Georgia and a greater southeast," stated Mr. Wright in his closing remarks.

Group meetings to lay plans for the financing, by zone bond issues, if necessary, the completion of all principal highways leading through north-west Georgia were held prior to the general meeting.

Among the roads for which financing and construction plans are to be completed as soon as possible are:

The Rome to Asheville highway via Calhoun, Blue Ridge and Murphy; the Cherokee trail from Rome to Gainesville, via Cartersville and Canton; State route No. 1 from Rome to LaGrange; the Atlanta to Birmingham highway, via Rome, and the Dixie highway from Atlanta to Chattanooga.

Delegations from Alabama were enthusiastic over the completion of the Piedmont and Gadsden routes to Birmingham.

Barbecue Served.

After the meeting, Rome entertained the delegates with an excellent Georgia barbecue. Splendidly prepared barbecued meats, Brunswick stew and soft drinks were served in abundance.

SWEET POTATOES SELL FOR FANCY PRICES AT LYONS

Lyons, Ga., July 22.—(Special.)—Shipment of Porto Rican sweet potatoes to southern markets has been rapid and remunerative. Griffin, of Oak Park, shipped 56 hampers from one-half of an acre which brought him $164.

Shipments started from this point July 2 and will practically cease this week, as most of the early ones will have been marketed by that time.

County Agent Garner has been assisting the farmers by showing them how to grade, pack and securing the markets for them.

A car was shipped to North Carolina last Friday at $3 per hamper and 81 hampers were shipped by express Saturday at the same price.

Another car was shipped from here Wednesday, being sold at a good price.

HOUDINI CHARGED ON ASSAULT COUNT

New York, July 22.—(AP)—A summons is out for Harry Houdini, handcuff king and magician, who is accused of staging an off-stage strongman act and wrecking the interior of the office of Houdini & Co., which is in the radio equipment business.

Several days ago Houdini, after getting a bill of goods delivered to Houdini & Co. and the first of offices to straighten matters out. There he saw a package addressed to "Hank Houdini." When he protested against the use of his name, he says, officers of the concern threatened to beat him up and locked the doors. In the ensuing fracas Houdini was far from beaten up, but a chair and a chandelier were smashed. A policeman refused to arrest Houdini.

PICKING PROHIBITION ADMINISTRATORS LAGS

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—Officials concerned with the revamping of the federal prohibition enforcement program continued today to give consideration to the selection of men who are to take active charge of enforcement in the field—the prohibition administrators—but the discussions brought only a reduction in the lists of the hundreds of men who have been put forward, either by themselves or others, as "available."

It had been planned for Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury to take up today the work of choosing the administrator at a conference with his immediate subordinates. That plan was upset, however, by the delay of the train on which he returned to the capital, and as a result of his late arrival, Mr. Andrews said tonight he contemplated little or no consideration of personnel questions.

Atlanta Viaducts Measure Is First Order of Business In Lower House This Morning

All-Day Debate Precedes Action on Illegal Expenditures Resolution of Representative Daniel.

When the house of representatives convenes this morning at 10 o'clock, first business before it will be the Atlanta viaducts resolution, which has already been passed by both houses but was amended in the senate.

It is necessary for the house to concur in the senate amendment, which provides that the viaducts proposed over the state railroad property at Pryor street and Central avenue, must be constructed within the next ten years. Practically no opposition to the amendment is expected in the house.

The entire session Wednesday was devoted to debate and voting on a resolution calling on the governor to prosecute state officials and employees who, it is charged, have used state funds illegally. The resolution was finally defeated 94 to 86 on an aye and nay vote.

The resolution was introduced Tuesday by Representative Daniel, of Troup, and drew attention to charges made in the state auditor's report that maintenance while in Atlanta had been charged against the state by John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway department, and Ira Williams, state entomologist. Representative Daniel, in speaking to his resolution, also drew attention to a portion of the state highway audit which, he said, showed that in one highway unit, over $17,000 had been spent for maintenance and repairs, while only $452 was shown expended on actual construction work.

"Expenditures like these are going to revolutionize the political situation in Georgia," Mr. Daniel declared. He quoted figures showing that cost of maintaining the automobile of the chief engineer of the highway department was over $5,000 for the year, and declared that no automobile could use that much gas and oil.

"This looks like criminal expenditure," he said. "I want the legislature to go on record as opposed to such practice."

Representative Milner, of Dodge, speaking for the resolution, said that the state auditor's report showed that the state entomologist last year was paid over $1,500 for substitutes "while in Atlanta," and declared this was in direct violation of the law appropriating a salary of $3,000 to this official.

He said, also, that although the law fixed the salary of the president of the state college of agriculture at $5,000, that official is, he "understood on good authority," drawing a salary of $8,808.

"The board of trustees have absolutely flouted the general assembly," he added.

Asks Investigation. The resolution as written requested the governor, with the aid of the state auditor, to investigate all facts relating to alleged illegal expenditures of state funds and to request the solicitor general of Fulton county to institute prosecutions in all cases where evidence warranted. The resolution also would put the legislature on record as favoring prompt and speedy prosecution of all parties guilty of such violations.

Representative Culpepper, of Fayette, opposed the resolution, saying that it was going beyond the domain of the legislature. He said that the governor "or any citizen of the state" already has the authority to institute such prosecutions.

Representative Barrett, of Stephens, also opposed the resolution, saying it was "worthless."

The governor Wednesday sent a communication to the house urging action on purchase of a governor's mansion as recommended in the report of the special committee of the last session. This report recommends purchase of the present property at 250 Prado, now owned as a mansion.

A resolution was introduced in the house Wednesday providing for purchase of the Prado property at a price of $75,000, together with three acres of land adjoining at $12,000, all or both amounts to be met out of rentals from the old mansion property on Peachtree now occupied by the Henry Grady hotel. Inasmuch as this brings the state $20,000 a year, it is pointed out that the new mansion would be paid for in five years.

Another new bill by Representative Gillen, of Stewart, and Montgomery, of Webster, provides that the governor may discount rental notes of the Western & Atlantic railroad for not more than seven years to pay back pensions due Confederate veterans.

He quoted figures showing that cost of maintaining the automobile of the chief engineer of the highway department was over $5,000 for the year, and declared that no automobile could use that much gas and oil.

"This looks like criminal expenditure," he said. "I want the legislature to go on record as opposed to such practice."

Representative Milner, of Dodge, speaking for the resolution, said that the state auditor's report showed that the state entomologist last year was paid over $1,500 for substitutes "while in Atlanta," and declared this was in direct violation of the law appropriating a salary of $3,000 to this official.

He said, also, that although the law fixed the salary of the president of the state college of agriculture at $5,000, that official is, he "understood on good authority," drawing a salary of $8,808.

"The board of trustees have absolutely flouted the general assembly," he added.

Asks Investigation. The resolution as written requested the governor, with the aid of the state auditor, to investigate all facts relating to alleged illegal expenditures of state funds and to request the solicitor general of Fulton county to institute prosecutions in all cases where evidence warranted. The resolution also would put the legislature on record as favoring prompt and speedy prosecution of all parties guilty of such violations.

Representative Culpepper, of Fayette, opposed the resolution, saying that it was going beyond the domain of the legislature. He said that the governor "or any citizen of the state" already has the authority to institute such prosecutions.

Representative Barrett, of Stephens, also opposed the resolution, saying it was "worthless."

The governor Wednesday sent a communication to the house urging action on purchase of a governor's mansion as recommended in the report of the special committee of the last session. This report recommends purchase of the present property at 250 Prado, now owned as a mansion.

A resolution was introduced in the house Wednesday providing for purchase of the Prado property at a price of $75,000, together with three acres of land adjoining at $12,000, all or both amounts to be met out of rentals from the old mansion property on Peachtree now occupied by the Henry Grady hotel. Inasmuch as this brings the state $20,000 a year, it is pointed out that the new mansion would be paid for in five years.

Another new bill by Representative Gillen, of Stewart, and Montgomery, of Webster, provides that the governor may discount rental notes of the Western & Atlantic railroad for not more than seven years to pay back pensions due Confederate veterans.

"Expenditures like these are going to revolutionize the political situation in Georgia," Mr. Daniel declared. He quoted figures showing that cost of maintaining the automobile of the chief engineer of the highway department was over $5,000 for the year, and declared that no automobile could use that much gas and oil.

"This looks like criminal expenditure," he said. "I want the legislature to go on record as opposed to such practice."

definite amount of evidence from scientists, religious liberals, fundamentalists, clergymen and educational leaders.

In the Dayton case, he added, the sole question was whether a state statute had been violated and since admittedly it had been, the courts were left to decide only that question and the higher courts would be without jurisdiction on the question of whether the law itself is in conflict with the constitution.

In his petition Wittner alleges 11 specific instances in which Balou and Hay either teach or permit to be taught matter contradicting the literal words of the Bible. He referred directly to G. W. Hunter's biology, cited in the Dayton trial, as one of the approved textbooks in the Washington high schools, and said that this and other textbooks, "conflicted with the Scriptural text."

The rider to the district appropriation bill, upon which the suit is predicated, was sponsored by Representative Summers, republican, Washington, and includes in its prohibition, besides "disrespect for the Bible," the teaching of partisan politics or that of an inferior form of government.

Representative Summers has left for his home. Examination of the house debate on the rider disclosed nothing that would indicate whether the authors had in mind the question of evolution. Discussion in the house centers largely on the matter of the teaching of partisan politics and Representative Crampton republican, Michigan, who was in charge of the bill, sought to have the rider eliminated.

Whatever may be Mr. Summers' idea, it is regarded now as certain that the subject of evolution will come before congress at the next session, if in no other way than by consideration of the rider to the district appropriation bill.

MAYOR CHAMPIONS CONTROL OF FUNDS

has informed me that he thought this change would be best. It was my understanding when the election looking to the change in this respect was called off, that a charter amendment would be passed without the necessity of an election."

Council passed its resolution Monday following circulation of reports that a bill is to be introduced in the legislature which would return financial control of the schools to council and provide that members of the school board be elected by council.

The paper was sponsored by Councilman John A. White and was adopted by a vote of 27 to 1. Although Mr. White was absent from the city Wednesday, it is expected that he will lead a fight to override the chief executive's veto.

The legislature last year authorized a referendum on the same question, and the election was set by council for June 10, but later was called off and now could not be held except under a new act of the state's lawmakers.

The mayor's action was not altogether unexpected, as he always has insisted that school department's finances should be controlled by council. The mayor has taken the attitude that the body raising the revenue should have some hand in its expenditure.

Before the June referendum was called off, the mayor expressed himself as favoring cancellation of the election, provided some assurance was received that the legislature would place council in control of school finances.

Hancock Assailed Plan.

Following announcement Sunday that a bill would be introduced at the general assembly, John T. Hancock, president of the board of education, issued a scathing statement, branding the move as a "political maneuver," and charging that the real reason for calling off the June referendum was because opponents of the school system knew that their cause would be defeated if placed before the people.

If council did control financial affairs of the school department, it would have absolute charge of all expenditures, with the board of education acting in an advisory capacity.

Urges $70,000,000 Bonds. Georgia's future growth depends on the fate of the $70,000,000 road bond bill, declared Mr. Thomas of Griffin. "Paved roads are the taproot of the state's development," he said. He declared that the state, agriculturally and educationally, was falling behind the procession now and asserted that the basic cause for this was the lack of good roads. "The children of the state can't go to school in the mud," he added.

In 1910, said Mr. Thomas, Georgia's total tax values were greater than those in North Carolina, yet in 1924 North Carolina's tax values were double those of Georgia in the same year. This remarkable change he attributed almost entirely to the difference in the roads of the two states and he cited census figures to show that, with a population of 3,000,000, there are only 310,752 farmers in Georgia, of whom only 102,000 are owners of the farms they operate.

"Georgia must pave her roads to develop her agricultural interests," he said. "The only way to increase tax revenue of the state is to build up the tax values and the way to do this is to build roads now."

The bond plan will pave the roads now, said Mr. Thomas, without any increase in the tax levy. The present gas and license tag taxes, he stated, would provide adequate revenue for retirement of the bonds.

Building Up Rural Schools. "The prime need of the state," he declared, "is the building up of her rural schools. The majority of Georgia counties the schools are inadequate. But you can't expect the children to go to school through the mud. Pave your roads and your educational problem will solve itself."

Mr. Thomas said that there were three main plans before the legislature for road building. The first he called the "pay-as-you-go" plan. He read figures from the highway department to show that with available revenue, this method would only leave less than $400,000 a year for road building after costs of expenses and upkeep are subtracted.

The pay-as-you-go plan means that it will take us 30 to 40 years to complete the state system," he said.

The second plan, Mr. Thomas said, was the zoning plan advocated by Mr. Granger. Mr. Thomas stated that he was not opposing this plan, but did not think it would prove satisfactory to the people because it would be necessary to have the county unit bonds on the taxable values under the ad valorem system in the different counties.

But the third plan, the bond plan, he said, would not cost the people of the state a penny and would give them the roads in seven years.

"Submit the proposition to the people, no matter how you feel on it yourselves," he told the legislators, "and I am convinced they will vote overwhelmingly for it. If they don't I'll graciously tuck my tail and admit my mistake."

George West Speaks.

George West, president of the State Kiwanis clubs, paid a glowing tribute to the legislature of six years ago, which created the state highway department. This action, he said, has given to the state of Georgia good basic roads all over the state.

"We are too prone to forget," said Mr. West, "the muddy roads of a few years ago and the tremendous improvement which already has been made. Georgia has spent her money well, preparing the foundation for the 6,000 miles of roads in our wonderful state highway system."

Mr. West said that Georgians were apt to give too much credit to the roads in neighboring states because they only rode over the main trunk lines when away from home. "But leave those trunk lines," he said, "and you will find that Georgia is not so far behind after all."

Advocates Bond Issue.

"In advocating this $70,000,000 bond issue for the prompt completion of our road system," he said, "we are not catering to the migratory tourists who pass through the state, spending as little as possible, but to native Georgians who live here and use the roads all the time."

Referring to the Granger plan of trunk lines, Mr. West said that it is impossible to build up the state school system by trunk line highways only and said that, even after the 2 cents of the gasoline tax and the other money had been laid aside for the bonds, the balance would be left for educational and other purposes.

Mr. West said he came as the representative of the 50 Kiwanis clubs in Georgia, all of which had endorsed the bond issue. He declared that groups of between 50 and 150 of the leading business men in 50 cities and towns of the state represented a fair percentage of the thinking population of the state and their endorsement was not to be lightly considered.

He added that it would be impossible for Georgians to really know their state until they had hard-surfaced roads to travel over.

"The state highway department has done a splendid work," he concluded, "and it is an institution bigger than any of the men who have been in it, bigger than any other single thing in the state, with the exception of the legislature which created it."

A. S. Bradley, of Swainsboro, who introduced Mr. Granger, referred to the successful creation of the Coastal Highway zone, which he said was conceived by Mr. Granger and which was the first example of the zoning plan.

Granger Explains Plan. "We are not opposed to any other system," said Mr. Granger, "but we advocate our own proposal, because it is the only plan by which the primary federal roads can be paved first. It will never be possible to sell bonds without the state's ad valorem tax power behind them. And our plan will leave the 1 cent gas money to the counties just as at present."

"We have, in this zoning bill," he said, "the only comprehensive plan. It means the building of 2,700 miles of the primary system and, if we don't build these main interstate highway lines, I warn you we are going to lose the federal aid money."

The wonderful feature of the zoning plan, he added, was that it left definite control of the money and the location of the roads in the hands of the counties themselves.

One Highway a Year.

He explained how, under his plan, one main trunk highway would be built each year, and that they would be built on the order of those counties which had the highest taxable values. The governor, comptroller general and attorney general, he said, would be designated to select the trunk lines on this basis.

Each zone, he said, would vote on its own bonds and would not have to participate in the plan unless it wished. Having only one project at a time, he said, would cut expenses of the highway department in half and would leave one and a half millions to the department for maintenance.

Out of the 121 counties in which the roads would be built, said Mr. Granger, there would be no direct tax except in 10 or 12 of the richest. Outside of these the gasoline tax would meet all payments.

H. H. Estes likened the future development of roads to the development of railroads and said that in ten years the towns which were not on a hard surfaced highway might as well quit and move somewhere else. The younger generation, he said, is moving to states which have solved their road problem.

Frank Reynolds Speaks.

Frank Reynolds said that he began the campaign for highway bonds over 25 years ago and pointed out that in 70 counties of the state, bonds already have been issued to pave state highways in those counties. Under this law, he said, the state will have to reimburse the counties for that work and he declared that under the $70,000,000 bond plan provision has been made for the payment to these counties of $1,000,000 a year for seven years, until the entire amount due has been paid.

"There is only one thing nearer my heart than this bond issue," he said, "and that is that Europe pays the $11,000,000,000 she owes us. With that money I could pave all the highways in the country, establish airplane routes all over the country, make every Atlantic port a free port, and have $8,000,000,000 left over to buy liquor."

Sylvester Speaks.

Mr. Sylvester, of Augusta, said Mr. Granger should be commended for his unselfish plan and work, but he thought the state ought to take the advice of Engineer Neel, the greatest highway expert available.

Concluding the argument, W. Tom Wynn declared his belief that all the gasoline and auto tag tax money should go to roads, and said he did not think the Granger plan feasible. He also pointed out that bonds issued by the state could be sold at 3 1/2 per cent interest, where bonds sold by county groups would have to pay 4 1/2 or 5 per cent interest.

President Ennis Wednesday barred the teeth of his policy announced several days ago that there "must be order in the senate." When the gavel fell at 11 o'clock, there were numbers of persons standing about the floor conversing.

"Let there be order in the senate!" said the president.

Orders Floor Cleared.

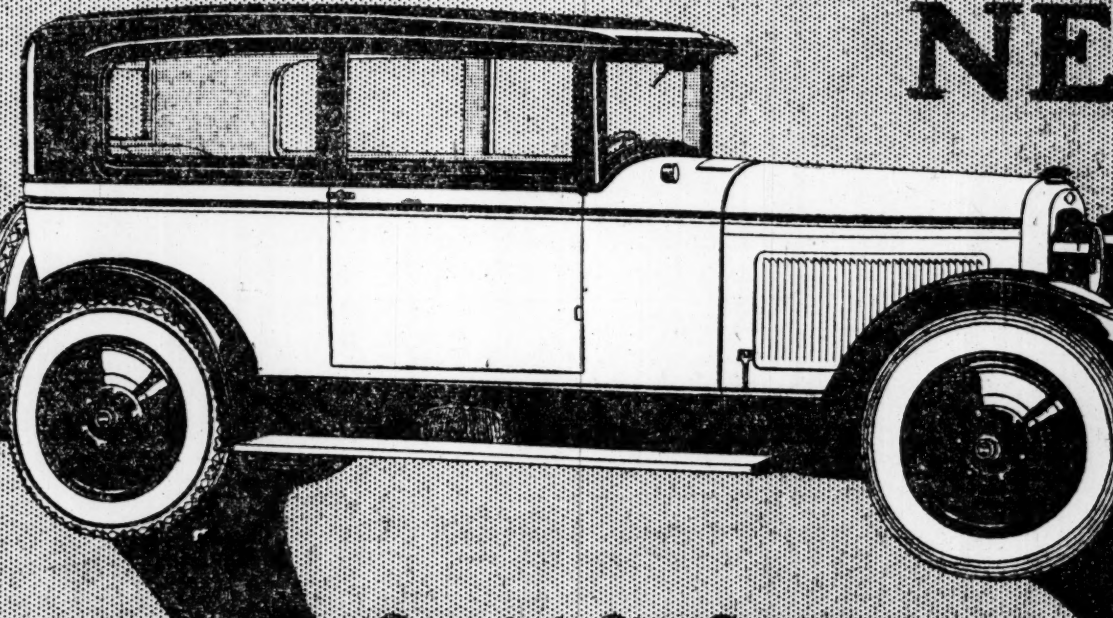

There was no response, and the demand was repeated with the same result. After the third time, the president ordered:

"The doorkeeper will clear the floor and close the doors of the senate at once!" and banged his gavel to emphasize the order.

The doorkeeper got busy and there was a general scampering for seats by senators as all outsiders were hustled outside the senate chamber. The chair rescinded his order to close the doors when order had been restored.

Bryan Defends Himself Against Darrow's Charge Of Being an 'Ignoramus'

Chicago Lawyer Tried To Take Advantage of Lack of Technical Knowledge of Sciences, He Says.

Dayton, Tenn., July 22.—(AP)—Discussing what he said was a charge of ignorance brought against him by Clarence Darrow, during questioning in the Scopes case, testimony later expanded as incompetent, William J. Bryan here tonight said that Mr. Darrow attempted to take advantage of his lack of technical knowledge in matters of paleontology, archeology and philosophy.

Mr. Bryan said that he planned to reply to this charge when the direct examination was ended, but the ruling of the court deprived him of this opportunity.

"I am not acquainted with the details of any of the sciences to which Mr. Darrow referred," said the statement. "My reading on these subjects has been general and not as a specialist."

Declares Test Is Unfair.
"It is unfair, however, that one should be condemned for lack of technical knowledge of a few subjects, if he has the common sense to know that there are more important subjects with which all the people deal. If we can trust the list given in a volume entitled 'American Men of Science' there are only about 5,500 persons in the United States who deserve to be called scientists."

"If we take 11 classes of scientists, say, for instance, astronomers, botanists, biologists, psychologists, geologists, zoologists, philologists, anthropologists, paleontologists, archeologists, and physiologists, and estimate the same number in each class, we will have a total of about 500 of these scientists in each of these classes, or one each of 200,000 of our population."

Thorough Knowledge Impossible.
"As it requires a considerable part of a lifetime to acquire one's self thoroughly with any one of these sciences, a man would have to spend many lives to be familiar with them all, even if he gave no time to the problems with which the mass of the people are dealing. My life has been spent in the study and discussion of economic, social and governmental problems, and I am willing to abide in the judgment of those whose paramount interest is in these problems, and they include more than 95 percent of the population, compared to the small per cent who specialize in various lines of science, however important their work may be."

"In all my varied experience, before intelligent people in many lands as well as in every state in the union, I was never called 'ignorant' or an 'ignoramus,' so far as I know, by anyone except an evolutionist, and the epithet was not used by evolutionists until I found it necessary to protect my family from the family tree by which evolutionists connect themselves with the jungle. The Christians of the world are not enemies of education."

BRYAN REFUSES TO ENTER DEBATE

Dayton, Tenn., July 22.—(AP)—William Jennings Bryan, in a statement issued here early today, announced that he would not consider a debate on any subject with any person.

He made the announcement, he said, in order to save "myself from answering, innumerable letters and telegrams."

"I have no time for such meetings," the statement continued. "I have suspended my lecturing and I have literary work that demands attention."

"Recently several of my invitations have mentioned Mr. Darrow as my opponent," he said. "I have had a number of invitations from atheists and agnostics and have felt less inclination to accept invitations on economic and governmental subjects."

"The attitude of the agnostic is so completely antagonistic to the attitude of a believer in Bible Christianity that we are not likely to convert each other and less likely to convert members of the audience when each comes to the meeting to support the champion of his side."

"Moreover, having heard Mr. Darrow, I am not at all disposed to invite Christians to come to a meeting where they would hear their religion shunned and sneered at. His hour of speech can draw crowds of his own."

"I shall leave him, therefore, to arrange for his own meetings and I shall speak wherever I do speak of the presentation of our side to those who care to listen. This religious question is now so acute that I shall neither receive compromise nor allow compromise to be charged when I defend the Christian faith."

Dayton Back to 'Normalcy'; DARROW TO LECTURE IN KNOXVILLE TONIGHT Little Left of Carnival Air

Dayton, Tenn., July 22.—(AP)—Robert Kidd, a messenger boy who has delivered hundreds of telegrams during the "Scopes trial," summed up the day after the trial in Dayton, when he said tonight:

"I made $12 yesterday and the day before and nothing today."

The Tennessee seat of the evolution test was back to normal after a period of feverish excitement. Little was left of the carnival air. Some of the concession stands remained standing, but they were unoccupied. The "no parking" signs had disappeared, leaving parking on a catch-as-catch-can basis.

John Thomas Scopes, the defendant, was planning to leave in a few days for his home in Paducah, Ky. His program after that, he said tonight, was uncertain. The 24-year-old school teacher announced today that he has not decided to appear on the lecture platform, although such a course is under consideration. Scopes declared he preferred to go back to college and friends were trying to arrange a scholarship for him in some university.

The Rhea county board of education will meet tomorrow and it was thought tonight that a science teacher for the Rhea county high school would be elected to succeed Scopes.

Clarence Darrow remained in Dayton today, his plans calling for a lecture in Knoxville tomorrow night and a vacation period following in the Tennessee mountains.

Dayton took stock today. F. E. Robinson, chairman of the board of education and proprietor of the drug store "where it started," was cheerful. "Dayton has been benefited, physically and mentally, by the 'evolution trial,'" said Mr. Robinson. "The town has a number of improvements that will be permanent assets at small cost to town and county, while the visit of the well-informed persons attending the trial has added to our mental equipment."

A home will be constructed for Thomas B. Paine, well-known banker of Atlanta, which is to be erected within one and one-half blocks of the Miami Biltmore Country club and golf course.

BILL CRAFTON CASE IS GIVEN TO JURORS

Bill Crafton, who went on trial in Fulton superior court Wednesday on charges of gambling in connection with a recent raid on 150 Waverly way, probably will know his fate today. The jury was excused late in the afternoon and allowed to disperse for the night after Judge G. H. Howard, before whom the case was tried, had delivered his charge. Deliberations will begin at 9 o'clock this morning.

The Crafton case is regarded as a test case of the state's anti-gambling crusade launched about two weeks ago by Solicitor General John A. Boykin, which has resulted in more than 40 arrests.

Stiff opposition developed to the state's charge that Crafton and several companions were playing poker when "Peacemaker" Williams' home at 150 Waverly way was raided. The defense claimed members of the party were engaged in a social game of set-back and that no money was at stake.

Crafton was brought in from the Fulton county chain-gang, where he is serving a sentence imposed in a former case in which he entered a plea of guilty. The sentence was suspended on the promise that he would refrain from gambling in the future, but the suspension was revoked after his second arrest.

Testimony at the trial was completed at noon and arguments begun. John Hudson, assistant solicitor, opened for the state; Fred Harrison and Hugh M. Dorsey followed in order for the defense and Ed A. Stephens, assistant solicitor, who has been in charge of the war on gambling since

Mr. Boykin was called out of the city several days ago, closed for the state. Bert Donaldson and Marvin Baker, special investigators of Mr. Boykin's office, were principal state's witnesses. They have been active in the round-up of alleged gamblers.

Beautiful Homes in Matchless Settings

MANY homes of rare beauty already dot the rolling slopes of Whitfield Estates, on Sarasota Bay; many more are under construction; many more are planned and ready to begin—and still more are projected for the very near future under our new and attractive plan of home financing.

For Whitfield Estates, ideally situated in an ideal climate, is to be truly a homeland, a haven for those who wish to live life at its uttermost.

No more perfect location than this could have been found in all of wondrously endowed Florida. Just five miles north of Sarasota, the wonder city of the western coast; five miles south of Bradenton, a thriving, ever-growing city set in the heart of the state's richest agricultural region; overlooking the placid waters of Sarasota Bay for more than a mile—the bay that has been called the most beautiful body of water in the world by travelers who have viewed the wonder spots of the globe. This property was for years jealously held intact as part of the vast Ringling estate.

Small wonder, then, that homeseekers are flocking here, to take advantage of the marvels Nature has wrought, and the refining, comfortable touches that have been added in such profusion by the skilled hand of man.

As these improvements speed ahead, values must inevitably rise. Now is the time to choose your home site, whether you wish to profit greatly or live gloriously—for lots in Whitfield Estates may now be bought for less than the cost of neighboring acreage, plus the cost of improvements.

See the property—know its glories for yourself—see why your opportunity is here in this modern wonderland.

POSTAL RATE HEARING. The congressional hearings on the increased postal rates will begin in Atlanta today.

While the general public may not feel deep concern in the hearing, it is a fact that there is no more important matter before the American people today, nor one that reaches more closely the individual interests of all the people.

Particularly does it reach the people of the rural communities, who perhaps personally, may feel fewer letters than those of the towns and cities, but who do feel the higher rates in the prices of the periodicals they buy, and in the price of every purchasable article that comes to them by parcel post.

They feel it in their own parcel post shipments of farm products. And in many other ways.

Since the rates were increased all along the line—mailed postal cards even being doubled in rate—by the last congress, the fact has developed that the very purposes sought have been defeated. Less net revenues have accrued to the postoffice department than before the rates were increased in the sense of a tax upon the people in order to produce more revenues, but it has driven businesses to using also other methods of communication, and of transporting.

The increases were directed most particularly against newspapers and periodicals, irrespective of the fact that newspapers are almost exclusively used to disseminate throughout the country daily all of the news and orders and official proceedings regarding governmental activities that the government seeks to convey to the public. And despite the further fact that newspapers and accredited periodicals are the greatest factors in stimulating the educational, industrial, commercial, financial, social and other worth-while and uplifting endeavors in our national life.

The idea that the people of this country must make the postoffice department self-sustaining whereas the items of greatest expense charged against it yearly are those of handling "official" and other "franked" mail, is fallacious. In a full and exhaustive brief, prepared by the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association in July, 1925, the following citation refers to this:

"There is one other angle to this entire situation that we desire to present to you, namely, that there is no just ground for reaching the conclusion that the postoffice department should be self-supporting. That is, if you consider all the activities of the postoffice department as legitimate operating costs. We have shown that the rural route service, which cost approximately $87,500,000 in 1923, the Star Route service, that cost $12,500,000, are services that are rendered for national growth and have no right to be charged as operating expenses to the postoffice department. This report shows also a deficit of $4,500,000 in the handling of foreign mail, due to the policy of the government of encouraging foreign trade. It shows a cost to the postoffice department of over $7,000,000 for the handling of penalty and franked mail. It also shows a loss of approximately $10,500,000 for special concessions to fraternal, religious, etc., papers. These are not items that a business administration could possibly consider as legitimate operating expenses. Their total is $122,000,000. The postmaster general's report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, showed an operating deficit of $24,362,000."

In all reason, the postal rates, in the interest of business expansion, popular education and rural development, need to be revised downward. Then the "franking" and concession privileges need to be revised to a reasonable, business basis. The postoffice department needs to be operated as a business, and not as a political, service institution.

THE LAWYER'S STANDARD.

Senator Albert Foster has introduced a bill changing the present requirements for admission to the bar in Georgia. The bill was drawn by the committee of the State Bar association on "legal education and admission to the bar," which is composed of Orville A. Park, chairman; Sylvanus Morris, Joseph A. Cronk, E. W. Moise and H. B. Troutman.

We quote the following from the report of this committee submitted to the Georgia Bar association at its annual meeting last June:

"The committee on legal education and admission to the bar has repeatedly recommended that the requirements for admission to the bar be made more rigid. These recommendations, while not agreeing in detail or as to method, have been along the following lines:

"(1) That none but citizens of the United States who have reached majority be admitted.

"(2) That the applicant for admission possess at least a high school education.

"(3) That the scope of the examination be broadened.

"(4) That the applicant be required to spend some definite period of time in study before taking the examination.

"(5) That more rigid scrutiny of the moral character of applicants be made.

"(6) That the supreme court be authorized to frame rules governing the examination and admission of applicants.

"(7) That the examinations be held at one time and place and under the direct supervision of the board of examiners.

"(8) That the privilege accorded attorneys of other states of admission by county be no longer granted or be materially restricted.

"(9) That the privilege conferred on the law schools of admitting their graduates on diplomas be abolished."

The bill by Senator Foster conforms to this report and introduces several much needed changes in the requirements for admission. Under the proposed changes all applicants will be required to be at least 21 years of age, to be citizens of the state of Georgia, to have a high school education or its equivalent, to be of good moral character, to have engaged in the study of law for a period of two scholastic years, aggregating eighteen months, next preceding application, either in a law school or under the direction of an attorney at law.

Further, admission upon diploma without examination is to be abolished, and all applicants must undergo the examination given by the board of examiners.

Unfortunately, the present requirements in Georgia are among the lowest of those of any of the states with the possible exception of Indiana. No definite period of study is required, nor must the applicant have attained his majority.

Georgia takes pride in the fact that her high requirements for admission to the practice of medicine place her in a favorable position among other states.

The profession of dentistry has seen that the requirements regulating entrance into its folds have kept pace with the increased educational advantages offered the people of today.

It is within the grasp of everyone today to obtain at least a high school education, and the requirements of this bill will not impose a hardship on anyone.

The Foster bill has been recommended favorably by the faculties of the law schools of the University of Georgia, Mercer and Emory and members of their faculties have appeared before the senate committee now considering this bill.

This bill ought to pass without a dissenting voice. We are turning out too many so-called lawyers in Georgia—a great number of whom are not properly equipped to succeed. The result is the lowering of the professional standard, the congestion of the courthouses, the too-frequent "framing" of litigations, and the increasing number of human failures from among whom constructive successes could have been made in other lines of endeavor.

This day and time calls for highly trained men and women in every activity, for only the fit can hope to survive under present conditions.

It is infinitely better that a young man should make of himself a successful artisan or a gainful laborer than an unsuccessful professional.

The law is a high and an honorable profession that invites—but it only invited those properly equipped for its complete mastery in all of its correlated branches.

Today's Talk BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE PRAYER OF A FIELD WORKER.

What a happy day of toil, God! How mellow were the fields, and how like waves of silk the climbing growth from the seeds which we planted but a few months ago.

It was very warm today, but we didn't mind it for we felt the honest sweat bath on our faces and we knew that we were but preparing for the golden harvest, and we thought of the millions of men and women, babies and boys and girls, as well as the great numbers of dumb animals whom our labors would eventually help to sustain.

How beautiful were the fields, God! How blue the sky. How fragrant the winds that swept over our body from the distant woods, green with their massive foliage. How sweet were the songs of the birds that flitted here and there about the stone fences and shrubs at the end of the fields.

How beautiful were the fields, God! How blue the sky. How fragrant the winds that swept over our body from the distant woods, green with their massive foliage. How sweet were the songs of the birds that flitted here and there about the stone fences and shrubs at the end of the fields.

And weren't the pastures beautiful as the well-cared-for early summer grass. How lovely the groups of sheep against the east shadows of the late afternoon. We thought of the happy shepherds of old and how they loved their sheep. We thought of the many men who have come out from such green pastures and helped to make this strange world better and more helpful.

Every once in a while the back got tired today, God, and we felt a loneliness creep over us, but no sooner did we think of the future than we were aware of some new expression in Nature that took our mind off ourselves and let us into the meditation of blessed mysteries.

We thought of the life of each stone that we turned up, of the many decayed roots that were once held deep in the earth, with an air of beauty overhead, and when we took our simple luncheon under the trees at noon, we picked the tiny flowers that smiled up at us from beneath the little blue-headed creatures, God, weren't they full of dainty smiles!

Now the day is done. The crickets and frogs are trying their talents against the cool country air, pregnant with richness. It's so peaceful. How quiet it is.

Thank you, God, for the day and its deeds. Reach down and close our eyes in happy sleep. On the morrow lead us again to the fields for further service, and let us ever love the soil—the rich garment of your world.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

One of the lady performers in Earl Carroll's review shot her husband last week. The producer bailed her out and had her on the stage the next night—and filled the house for five nights on account of the damsel. But the novelty is wearing off now and a new publicity stunt has been devised. Some of Earl's charmers who peddle cigarettes between curtains, and who are attired in thigh-high skirts make an appearance on the sidewalk just before the asbestos goes up, dash about madly in the lobby shrieking: "It's time for the show. You better hurry." This stunt pulls them in by the hundreds.

Broadway Meanderings: A negro named J. Walker was arrested for jay-walking today. Eugene O'Neill is one of the very few Broadway lights who was born on that street; the others come either from Dubuque, Iowa or from Chillicothe, Ohio. I noticed that one play announcement had an interrogation mark added to the title the last few days. It now reads: "What Women Do?" One all-night club has had the nerve to invite W. J. Bryan to view and sample its attractions.

Since time immemorial great news events have been immortalized in verse and song, but the latest wrinkle in best sellers now going 'round in Lower Broadway clubs happens to be a ditty, written by a southern colored minstrel, and dedicated to the late Floyd Collins, the gentleman who died under dramatic circumstances in a Kentucky cave some months ago. The song is entitled: "Floyd Collins in Sandcave." It has been put on records by a phonograph concern, which claims that the thing is selling like poison hooch. Blind Andy accompanies himself on the guitar, which he syncopates in "hot style."

The daughter of Governor Smith has come back from abroad and charmingly admitted to ship reporters that the Pope had never heard of "papa." New York and Paris are quibbling over the honor of having introduced the latest fad which calls for a live snake to be worn around the neck by the ladies. I am wondering where they will park these cold-blooded neckpieces when in church and how they will keep the thing out of the soup while dining. Still it's curious that women haven't had enough of snakes since Mother Eve's disagreeable experience.

Cocktail parties in the privacy of the steamship cabin just before sailing are the latest fads. New regulations make the steamers leave at 1 and 2 in the morning, which allows one's friends three or four hours of life on the high seas.

He was as black as Siki, and his pearly white teeth shone like a subway toothpaste advertisement. He ambled into one of those beereries on a Times Square side street and asked the countermaid for some "summer ham." "What's that?" asked the surprised dispenser. "Wotter-melon?" beamed the dinge.

Small business men do not need a college training to improve their methods. A court case recently brought to light the existence of a new trade or profession known as "capper." The wife of such a capper sued for separation. She complained that her husband got in hand her any of the tips he got in the barber shop where he worked.

The husband denied he was a barber, but just a "capper." The judge grew curious. "What's a capper?" asked the court. "I dress up like a barber, judge, and stand in front of the shop. Customers duck in thinking there'll be no waiting as long as there's a 'barber' standing out in front."

The job seemed to pay the boss for the "capper" said he got $35 a week.

Never heard on Broadway: "You'd better take these shoes a size larger, madam." "Bobbed hair isn't smart any more, my dear." "I had a big business conference on tonight, dear, but I'll call it off." "I am spending my vacation at home this year."

LEGISLATORS INVITED TO CHARTER LUNCHEON

A request that the people be given an opportunity to vote on the question of substituting the council-manager form of government for that now used in Atlanta will be presented to members of the legislature in the form of a petition at a luncheon to be held at the Kimball house July 30, it was announced today by the city manager, Edgar E. Pomeroy, chairman of the citizens' charter committee.

The petition, he stated, has been signed by more than 3,000 registered Atlanta voters, and a large number of additional signatures are expected before the actual presentation.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the luncheon including brief speeches by prominent representatives of every section of the city. Colonel Pomeroy will present the petition.

If the bill requested by the petition passes the legislature, a referendum will be held in May, 1926, and if the people vote for the council-manager form of government, it is to go into effect January 1, 1927. Failure to pass it would mean that the people could not vote on the question for at least two years more.

Provides City Manager. The charter was drafted by E. Marvin Underwood, Atlanta attorney, and provides for a council of 15 members, with a city manager. All members of the council are to be elected by the people.

Robert L. Foreman, chairman of the committee named to make recommendations to the legislature, stated that accommodations can be provided for only 200, and asks that they be made as soon as possible. Other members of the committee are: Horace Russell and Robert Parker.

THREE COUNCIL PAPERS VETOED BY MAYOR SIMS

Three council papers were vetoed by Mayor Walter A. Sims Wednesday. In disapproving council's acceptance of the offer of $2,500 for the city disposal plant, made by J. A. Couch, the mayor stated that he since has received an offer of $3,000 for the plant, and that all offers for the plant should be given proper consideration before sale is completed.

The plant is used in disposing of bodies of dead animals, and for the disposal of garbage. The city has operated it for the city. He proposed, in offering to buy it, to continue service to the city free of charge.

Other papers disapproved included one reducing the paving assessment against the aggregations of the city to 25 per cent of the total, and a request of the Vocational Service bureau for a refund of part of its license fee. The first, the mayor said, has been ruled illegal by the city attorney.

$50,000 IS ASKED FOR USE IN AID OF STATE FAIRS

Representatives Warren, of Washington, and Lewis, of Hancock, introduced a bill in the house Wednesday to appropriate $50,000 "to carry out the designs of the state department of agriculture to promote the progress of all nations has been prepared by one of the group meetings of the World Federation of Education Association in sessions here."

The university group has formulated a program providing for the interchange of teachers and students by all the leading institutions of higher education in the world.

The plan would mean more than 1,000 transfers annually.

Another group of educators asks schools throughout the world to observe May 18 as "International Good Will Day," a custom instituted by San Francisco educators in 1923.

G. K. Chesterton, the British author, and the Marquis of Aberdeen addressed a luncheon for the educators today.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

IN THE GREAT OPEN SPACES. The ultraviolet rays of sunlight, the electric arc lamp or the mercury vapor quartz lamp seem to be essential for normal mineral metabolism in the body, that is, for the normal utilization of the important mineral substances in food, such as calcium (lime) and phosphorus. Whatever the mysterious factor in ultraviolet (invisible) light may be, the research workers have determined by animal experimentation and careful tests in human nutrition that the factor may be carried by certain food substances, or substances which may be used as food, notably cod liver oil. The physiologists have even found that other oils, such as olive oil, or lard, may be made to carry the factor by exposing thin films of the oils to ultraviolet rays. Is this the ultraviolet factor which is called a vitamin? It remains for the physiological chemist of the future to settle that question.

The physical superiority of troops from the west over those recruited from the eastern states was impressed on all observers in the course of our preparation for the world war. It had always been assumed that men in the west averaged higher and sturdier in physical development or strength than men in the east. The movement of troops from cantonments to ports of embarkation gave frequent opportunity for comparison of picked bodies of men and convinced the most skeptical that men are sturdier in the great open spaces. They grow bigger and better men out where the tall corn grows and on to the Rockies.

My own deduction is that the difference is a matter of ultraviolet light—the great open spaces afford more of it than the smoky cities of the east. I do not advise any man to go eastward to go west in the hope of growing up as they do in the great open spaces, but I think infants who are destined to remain stout ought to spend upon their parents' money where the ultraviolet factor is free and unobscured by cloud or smoke.

Treatment of such foods as meat and cereals with ultraviolet light has been found to impart to these foods the factor necessary to prevent rickets, and it is now well known that rickets is a disease of calcium metabolism. It is for the express purpose of preventing any slight manifestation of this very common disease that physicians now recommend the addition of a few drops of plain cod liver oil to the food of the artificially fed infant, beginning with say five drops twice a day for a child in months old and gradually increasing the daily dose until the baby takes, say a teaspoonful of cod liver oil daily from the time he is five months old.

If the codfish should become extinct, don't worry, but substitute sunlight for the cod liver oil. If the smoke in your room screens out the necessary ultraviolet light, find a doctor or hospital where the baby can be given the ultraviolet treatment—but for good—before rickets sets in with its worthless "violet ray machine."

SOUTHERN PLANS NEW COLOR LIGHT SIGNAL SERVICE

The Southern Railway system will begin work immediately on installation of improved automatic electric block system protection for 1,623 miles of line, according to Vice President R. B. Pegg.

The double-track line between Atlanta and Austell, 18 miles, color light signals will be substituted for the three-position signals now in service, giving continuous protection by the color-light signals on the entire line of 167 miles between Birmingham and Atlanta. The line between Morrisville, Tenn., and Baltimore, N. C., 93 miles, will be equipped with the signals of the new three-color-light type. Signals of the same type will be installed on the double-track line between Cincinnati and Knoxville, 41.8 miles, taking the place of the three-position, upper-quadrant signals now in use.

On the line between Cincinnati and Meridian, Miss., three-position, upper-quadrant signals will be installed wherever signals of other types are now in service. On the line between Cincinnati and Chattanooga, 135.5 miles, will be equipped with signals of the three-position, upper-quadrant type.

Program Announced for "Prosperity Fete"

With more than 2,000 growers of south Georgia invited to attend the "Prosperity Fete," which will be staged under the auspices of the farm sales department of the Atlanta Trust company at American next Saturday, the complete program for the celebration was announced today.

Festivities will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning with a meeting on Old Scrabble's farm near Leesburg. This will be followed by an inspection of Lee county farms, a barbecue, speeches by several prominent men, a watermelon cutting and automobile trips to nearby points of interest.

A number of motor parties are expected to drive to Americus to attend the fete. Parties arriving in Atlanta can leave here early Saturday morning, arrive in time for the fete and return by midnight.

MINUTE MEN PROTEST NAME INFRINGEMENT

Somerville, Mass., July 22.—(AP) Frank J. Batchelder, of this city, chairman of the national committee of the Minute Men of America, announced today that that organization had connection with the "Minute Men of America," a body formed by a section of the Ku Klux Klan of Colorado. The statement said:

"I have wired Dr. Locke vigorously protesting against the use of a name which is practically the same as that of our organization. The American Minute Men have an enrolled membership of more than 5,000,000 citizens. We aim to prohibit sectarian appropriations, that and nothing else."

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Bolshevik Camouflage. Father Martinus Fredericks, lone soldier of the cross in the upper reaches of the Yangtze river, writes of the presence of extraordinary individuals who travel up and down the hinterland of China, surrounded by a host of disciples, preaching strange new doctrines. Some of the good parishioners of "Pere" Fredericks, merchants by trade, told him of the presence of these "men of God" on the highways and market places of Mongolia. They were described to him as wearing long flowing garments, speaking fluently the language of the country through foreign devils. From his parishioners the priest also learned that these preachers spoke of the nearness of a golden era, a sort of millennium. The situation was revealed to me when some of my people showed me little cards, "prayer pictures" they called them, after the term used by us in church work. The pictures represented Messrs. Lenin and Zinoviev. Any one willing to take a bundle of the pictures home was rewarded with a little red imitation flower to be worn on the garment. The inscriptions on the pictures were cleverly worded appeals to revolution. Flowing garments, dignified and sacerdotal deportment may also be utilized as propaganda measures, it appears. As with disguise, this, but the bolsheviks' cleverest trick of using religion as a medium of spreading the soviet doctrines was the printing of a million Bibles in various Chinese dialects, with the communist manifesto safely imbedded between the Acts of the Apostles and St. Paul's epistles to the Romans.

Most Beautiful Language. Foreigners in Constantinople must speak Turkish when they want to take a little excursion to the Asiatic side of the Sea of Marmara, by order of the nationalist movement of the town. The penalty is arrest and a fine or imprisonment. Cafe visitors are especially mentioned in the manifestoes.

More In Their Line. It takes a lot more strength to climb a tough old mountain, any time. Than hold an egg. Yet wives too weak To cook, go up 'n like a streak!

Business of State Senate Is Speeded Up by Earlier Hour for Daily Sessions

Licensing and Regulation of Real Estate Dealers Is Proposed in the New Bill.

Daily activities of the state senate will begin at 10 o'clock this morning instead of at 11 o'clock as heretofore has been the rule. The hour of meeting was pushed up by an adjournment motion made Wednesday by Senator W. M. Shapp, of the 43d, vice chairman of the rules committee. The earlier hour of convening will give the senate more time for transaction of business before adjournment for dinner at 1 o'clock.

With the flood of new bills introduced each day undiminished and introduction of house bills in the senate increasing, the additional hour has been made necessary. President J. Howard Ennis announced recently that the hour of meeting probably would be pushed up to 10 o'clock and that it necessary he will have the hour set for 9 o'clock each morning.

Introduction of a bill to create a state real estate commission which would license and authorize to do business all persons engaged in real estate transactions featured new measures Wednesday. The bill was signed by Senators Hendrix, of the 55th; Peebles, of the 18th; Morgan, of the 1st, and Perkins, of the 24th. It is the outgrowth of an agitation which began some time ago among Georgia real estate men for such a commission, in line with suggestions made in a model bill originating in the national real estate board.

Three Men Would Serve. The commission would consist of three men appointed by the governor, with authority to employ a secretary and treasurer, clerks, assistants and attorneys and to contract for other necessary expenses. The salaries would be paid out of license fees. Licenses would cost $25 a year for a real estate broker and $10 a year for salesmen.

Inbroken Stoicism of Alleged Robber Waves In Cell at Police Station

MOTHER AND UNNAMED GIRL STIR ANXIETY OF SMITH

Photographs by Kenneth Rogers.

Detective E. C. Hudson, left, and his prisoner, Gerald L. Smith. On the desk is shown the rifle, revolver and other weapons captured when police raided his apartment on Peachtree Place Tuesday. In addition to the weapons, officers confiscated a suit case, which was filled with jewelry, a large part of which has been identified by Atlantans as stolen from their homes. The jewelry recovered was valued at more than $15,000.

Work of Restoring Great Cache of Gems and Clothing Begins—Youth Claims Innocence.

Unbroken stoicism maintained Wednesday by Gerald L. Smith as several prominent Atlantans identified various articles of jewelry found in his possession as having been stolen by burglars from their homes, melted into anxiety as night stole into the day at police headquarters, and the youth's prisoner's mind drifted back to the home he had left in Birmingham, Ala., and to his widowed mother.

Too, according to Smith's own admission, there is a girl that he dares not name.

"What will she think? How can she ever understand, and how could I ever begin to explain?" were questions that he asked himself as he clutched the steel bars that stood between him and liberty.

Smith, who is only 22 years of age, Wednesday stood before J. P. Billups, general passenger agent of several railroads, and heard him identify trunks that Smith was wearing as a pair that had been taken by burglars from Mr. Billups' home at 47 The Prado. Apparently unperturbed and with an air of cold indifference, Smith leisurely slipped the trunks off and handed them over to the claimant.

Jewelry Cache Recovered. He also heard Mr. Billups identify and receipt for jewelry valued at $23,920 taken from his home in the same robbery. A quantity of sterling silverware also taken from the Billups' home is still at detective headquarters.

"Some of this jewelry I bought; the balance I found in Piedmont park in a pasteboard box," Smith stated. He has not budged from this claim, although he readily admits that he realizes his story sounds "fishy."

In addition to being disrobed of trunks that were stolen from the Billups' home, Smith heard the brother of Mrs. D. A. Collins, 38 East Fourteenth street, claim a fraternity ring that he was wearing. With the same impassiveness he slipped it from his finger and presented it to the owner. He listened to Mrs. Collins claim other articles of jewelry as having been taken by some robber that visited her home.

Mrs. H. L. Cobb, 32 Ponce de Leon avenue, also found and receipted for jewelry that burglars had stolen from her.

$12,000 Loot Seized. Jewelry, bric-a-brac and articles of clothing valued by detectives at more than $12,000 were recovered from Smith's room, following his arrest Tuesday by Officers E. C. Hudson, J. C. Mosley and T. J. Harrison. Police have not been able to locate owners of all of the loot they recovered.

Smith was taken into custody in a pawnshop on Decatur street, when he tried to pawn for $100 a diamond brooch valued by officers at $2,500. This brooch later was identified as having been stolen from the Billups home on The Prado.

Learning where Smith was rooming at 45 Peachtree Place, detectives began a search of his luggage and effects, finding jewelry that filled a suitcase. Nine other handbags and suitcases in his room were filled with clothing and other articles. Officers also found four pistols and a rifle.

Card Index System. Cards containing names of prominent Atlantans and notation of dates each was scheduled to leave the city for a stay of several days were found in Smith's possession, officers state. In explanation of this card index system, Smith stated that he gathered it for the purpose of visiting them just before they left to sell them accident insurance.

"I know the odds are against me and that no one will believe my story of how I got possession of the things the officers took from my room, but it is the truth," Smith stated to a Constitution reporter Tuesday.

Born in Nebraska, Smith stated that his father and mother moved to Birmingham when he was quite young; that he graduated from the public schools of that city and attended Howard college one year. His father died about two years ago, he stated.

PUBLIC TO RECEIVE INCOME TAX DATA

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—Income tax records for the last year will be opened for public inspection by the internal revenue collectors September 1.

Announcement of the date was made today by the internal revenue bureau after it was advised that the records would be completed before that time.

Under a recent supreme court decision the tax figures made public by the collectors can legally be published in newspapers.

The law provides the statistics shall be made available by collectors at a time to be selected by the internal revenue bureau.

The bureau's announcement said no restriction would be placed around the record during any working day for 30 days after the books are thrown open September 1.

At the end of the 30-day period the time in which the public may examine the records will be regulated by each collector "with a view to preventing undue interference with the official work of his office."

Following this 30-day period, the statement said, "the lists must be open for public inspection at least three days a week, and during such days they shall be available to the public at least three hours a day. The days and the hours will be selected by each collector of internal revenue and due publicity to their regular hours will be given by the individual collector."

MRS. WILLINGHAM AND BABY INJURED BY NEGRO CYCLIST

Mrs. W. G. Willingham, of 11-A Currier street, while crossing Peachtree street at Alexander late Wednesday night, with a small child in her arms, was struck down by a bicycle ridden by John Moore, a negro special delivery messenger, according to police reports. Mrs. Willingham and the baby received bruises and lacerations about the body, but were not seriously hurt.

Patrolman J. W. Woolley, who investigated, stated that Mrs. Willingham, who had her sister's child in her arms, was just stepping on the curb when the negro messenger on the wheel struck her, knocking her to the pavement.

A case of reckless riding was docked against the negro, who is being held under a $100 bond.

Other talks will be made during the meeting at Culverton, according to County Agent Truitt, who will preside.

Citizens Want Tolls Charged On Tybee Road

Savannah, Ga., July 22.—There has been a petition in circulation to have the state highway board make the Tybee road, entering this city, a toll highway. The petition has already been signed by some of the leading citizens on or near the highway, but no action as to the outcome of the petition has been announced by the highway board.

The tolls collected on the road, it was announced, would be used to surface the highway.

CROP CONDITIONS FINE, WARE COUNTY REPORTS

Waycross, Ga., July 22.—(Special.) Crops in Ware county are in the best condition for this season of the year than they have been for a number of years, Dr. R. J. Heyde, county agent, states.

The corn crop is also fine. The farmers are poisoning their cotton and indications are that Ware county will have one of the best cotton crops since the pre-boll weevil period.

The tobacco crop is only about half cured and the farmers are having to work overtime to get the crop ready for the opening of the market on July 28.

Indications are that the quality of the crop will be the best ever grown in Ware county.

FARMERS OF HANCOCK TO HEAR APPLETON

Sparta, Ga., July 22.—(Special.) Soil-building through the planting of legumes and pertinent suggestions on how to obtain permanent pastures will be the outstanding features of an address next Tuesday by Professor Appleton, field crop specialist of the State College of Agriculture, at the farm of John O. Moore, near here, where modern and approved methods of general farming, fruit and pecan growing are carried on successfully.

Farmers in all sections of the county who are interested are urged by the county agent to attend the meeting.

Other talks will be made during the meeting at Culverton, according to County Agent Truitt, who will preside.

Public buildings and improvements to be completed during the next two years will cost $5,000,000.

AUSTRALIANS WELCOME UNITED STATES FLEET

Melbourne, July 23.—(AP)—The United States fleet today found harbor in Australian waters.

The detachment entered Melbourne harbor this morning, while another was received at Sydney, New South Wales. Arrival of the two sections of the fleet was the signal for extensive celebrations at both cities.

Melbourne was ready. The most elaborate reception arrangements had been completed. Lengthy articles appeared in today's newspapers, warmly welcoming the fleet and emphasizing the blood relationship of the people of America and Australia. Messages from high officials of both state and federal governments and the lord mayor of Melbourne also were printed. The Victorian parliament stands adjourned for three weeks to enable its members to participate in the welcome.

Thousands were conveyed by trains to points of vantage around Port Melbourne today to witness the coming of the big ships. An aerial demonstration was a spectacular feat of the city's welcome to the visiting ships.

Students Entering Oglethorpe University in September should matriculate at once. The student body will be limited to 450 for the session of 1925-26 and until Lowry hall and the new units of Lupton hall are finished. Catalog and bulletins on application. Phone Henlock 3096-J or W—(ads.)

THE places owned and operated by this company for the sale of gasoline and motor oils are called service stations, and not filling stations.

That is because we try to render the community a service in addition to providing high-grade products.

You will find our service men courteous and alert, ready to inflate a tire, wipe your windshield, and give other evidences of their attention to your needs.

Pan-Am Crank-Case Service—Every Pan-Am Service Station is equipped to give the most modern type of crank-case service. You just stop your car over a concrete pit and have the old oil drained off, the crank-case flushed, and fresh oil put in.

The whole performance takes but fifteen minutes and there is no charge except for the oil used. At the same time, for only a nominal charge, we will lubricate the transmission and, whether you have grease cups or the Alemite system, grease every moving part of your car.

Pan-Am Service Stations are here to serve, and we should like the opportunity to serve you. Stop at one of our stations for a trial and see how you like the place.

Wealthy Floridan Takes Kin On Tour of United States

BY RUBY LEACH.

Birmingham, Ala., (En Route with the Rodes Family Special.)—July 22. The Rodes family is speeding through the south on one of the most remarkable trips taken since the invention of the first choo-choo.

The clan began to gather at its palatial Pullman left Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Monday and has now been considerably augmented with the reuniting of long-separated cousins, sisters, aunts and brothers who are included in this tour across the United States and into old Mexico.

It may be recalled that "Charlie" Rodes, who went to Fort Lauderdale many years ago from West Virginia and finally made a few millions in Florida real estate, recently flabbergasted a railroad company and delighted some 50 of his relatives by organizing this tour for them at his own expense.

Gay laughter rings through the car and there is considerable jesting about "poor relatives" as the big family has been somewhat erroneously called. The relatives are accompanied by Rodes, a physician, a camera man and your correspondent.

For poor relations, I must say they are a prosperous looking bunch. The youngest member of the party is little Billie Kyle, of Fort Lauderdale, nephew of "Charlie" Rodes and son of a bank president. Little Billie is 18 months old and has kept the porter in the air and on the jump continually by pressing the button in his mother's stateroom.

When the train reached Melbourne 17 more relatives filed on board to the grinding of the movie camera. We were piled in like kumquats in a crate until we arrived at Jacksonville, where we stopped long enough to annex more kumquats, another Pullman observation car and a diner as well as the specially installed shower bath and bath tub. Then the "Rodes Florida Special" became complete except for the kith and kin to get on at Kansas City and in New Mexico.

During the hot and dusty trip up the Florida peninsula, the showers were spoken of joyously, just like the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone park. The crowd played some bridge and tried to sing, but everybody was too busy exchanging family gossip and talking about the trip to do much else.

Later when character types reveal themselves and love begins to dawn, as it invariably does when trips are long and many of the travelers young and fair and propinquity gets a chance to do its stuff, we will begin making and taking a scenario of the trip.

The plot will probably thicken all the way from Tijuana, Mexico, to Reno, Salt Lake City and the Mammoth cave. Rodes expects the making of this scenario to give his guests something amusing to do when the special is sidetracked.

The trip has already cost Rodes $15,000 more than he expected it to, but he is really getting a kick out of this tour for his folks, rich and poor alike.

"This is a treat, although some of my relatives are prosperous," he said Tuesday. "Some of them moved to Florida from West Virginia and you know we get that way in Florida."

Rodes recently acquired fame as a family philanthropist has brought tons of begging letters to his desk with requests as low as 20 cents and as high as $700,000. One woman wanted $7,000 to pay for an operation. Most of the letters, however, are from religious cranks.

The last word in hospitality was demonstrated by Rodes when he took out accident insurance policies for each of his 50 guests.

Congressional Postoffice Commission To Hear Newspaper Publishers Today

Three Senators and Two Congressmen Arrive in Atlanta To Conduct Special Hearing.

Prominent newspaper publishers and other well-known business men from various parts of the southeast are in Atlanta to appear before the subcommittee of the joint congressional committee on postoffices and post roads to discuss postal rates at a session of the committee to be held at the Henry Grady hotel at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Members of the committee arrived in Atlanta Wednesday afternoon and went immediately to the Henry Grady hotel, where they will be quartered during their stay in Atlanta. The hotel has completed arrangements for the hearing and more than 200 persons are expected to attend. Postmaster E. K. Large said prominent postal officials of the south will attend the sessions as well as Rush D. Simmons, of Washington, D. C., chief postoffice inspector, who has been attending a conference of postoffice inspectors held here.

The three senators of the subcommittee are Senators George H. Moses, New Hampshire; Lawrence Phipps, Colorado; and Kenneth McKellar, Tennessee. The three house members on the committee are Congressmen Thomas M. Bell, Georgia; C. W. Ramsey, Iowa; and W. W. Griest, Pennsylvania.

One Day's Hearing. Senator Moses, chairman of the subcommittee, announced that efforts would be made to conclude the hearing Thursday.

"We have no statement to give out except to say that we are here to listen to what the people have to say to us about the postal rates," he said.

Congressman Thomas M. Bell, of the seventh Georgia district, who is a member of the committee, said the visitors will be taken to Stone Mountain and the federal prison during their stay here. After the committee finishes its work here the members will go to Mount Yonah, near Gainesville, to visit Congressman Bell at his home there.

At the Henry Grady hotel, local postoffice officials headed by Postmaster E. K. Large and Joe Johnston, chief postoffice inspector of the southeast, and Rush D. Simmons, Washington, chief postoffice inspector, met the congressional party. No session held Thursday night as the members of the party were tired after their trip from Washington. After they leave Georgia the members of the committee will go to Philadelphia, where a hearing will be held.

Newspaper Men Here. The Southern Newspaper Publishers' association will be represented at the hearing by a special committee composed of E. B. Stahlman, Nashville, Tenn.; Ury Woodson, Owensboro, Ky.; M. E. Foster, Houston, Texas; H. G. Denton, Kingston, N. C.; and Robert E. Ewing, New Orleans.

Atlanta publishers and other persons who handle large amounts of mail in their business will be represented before the committee by a special committee headed by W. R. C. Smith, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

At the last session of congress the subcommittee was authorized to hold sessions in various parts of the country to assemble information concerning the new postal rates which were put into effect April 15. These rates were considered tentative rates to meet the demands made by the increases in salaries granted postal employees in an act passed by congress. The committee will make recommendations relative to the adoption of a permanent scale of postal rates. United States Senator William J. Harris and Walter F. George, of Georgia, will attend the session.

WOMAN GIVEN TERM FOR CHANGING BABIES

New York, July 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisen-Volk, proprietress of an East Thirty-eighth street home for infants, today was sentenced from three and one-half to seven years in Auburn prison on a charge of baby substitution, to which she had pleaded guilty.

The probation officer's report, submitted to the court before sentence was pronounced, characterized her as a "woman without conscience, who had strangled, frozen to death and otherwise disposed of infants left in her care."

The report said that since February, 1918, at least 33 infants had died while in Mrs. Geisen-Volk's charge. It alleged that she treated the children in any way if it meant financial benefit to herself; that she destroyed children for a consideration and non-paying babies because they were liabilities.

"She had no maternal affections, at least with respect to the babies of other people," the report said. "To her they were puppies, articles of merchandise to be bartered or exchanged."

MACCABEES REELECT FRYE AS COMMANDER

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—The Maccabee fraternal order in quadrennial convention today elected officers for the ensuing term and adopted a resolution designed to bring about more complete centralization of the organization's management.

A. W. Frye was re-elected supreme commander, and S. W. Hall, of Oakland, Calif., was chosen supreme recorder for the ensuing term. Frye was elected for a third year, having served in that office since 1922.

The resolution provides for placing all affairs of the order, except purely local in character, under direction of the supreme office of the Maccabees in Detroit. The change will affect several states, in which much of the organization's business was handled by subdivisions, known as "great camps."

MISSOURI MULES SHIPPED TO SPAIN FOR RIFFIAN WAR

St. Louis, July 22.—(AP)—The Missouri mule, after playing an important if inconspicuous part in the defeat of its native land in the war for Cuban independence, is at least destined to take part in a campaign waged by its own country—Spain.

The rise of the American industry, of which the Missouri mule is a product, dates from the presentation of a pair of Andalusian jacks to the United States government by the king of Spain in the nineteenth century. Later, in 1898, the mule carried stores and ammunition for President McKinley's volunteer army, when Spanish misrule was wiped out in Cuba and the Philippines.

Now, completing the cycle, the Missouri mule has entered the Spanish service to see action in the Riff war against Abd-el-Krim.

What Gas Ever Made a Record Matching This?

Three months ago Reed introduced a new gasoline in Atlanta. Dozens of well-advised gasolines were already on the market. Competition was unusually keen.

Despite these facts this new Wonder Gas won in 90 days 7,500 enthusiastic friends and attained the unprecedented sales volume of 1,000,000 gallons.

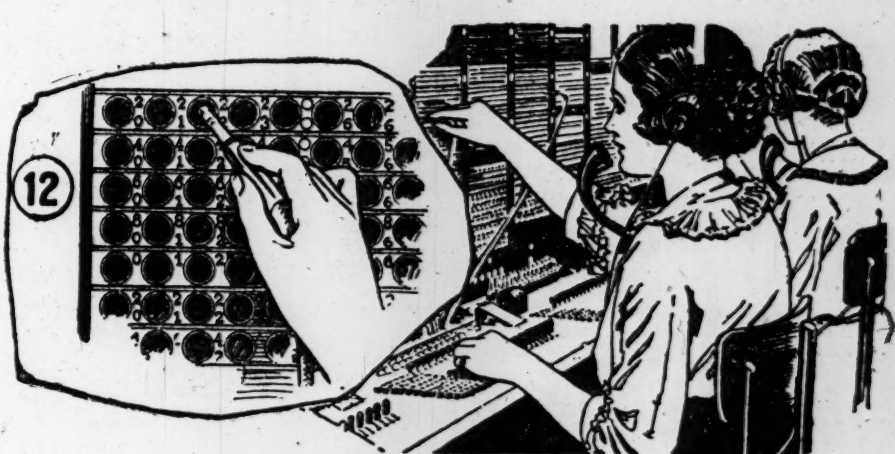

This gasoline is called BLUE STREAK. The reasons for its remarkable popularity can be learned by any motorist who will try a tank full.

Through July the price of Blue Streak will be the same as ordinary gas. The extra mileage costs you nothing.

Look for a Reed sign when the tank is low. Find out for yourself why Blue Streak has become Atlanta's most popular gasoline.

When The Line Is "Busy"

THE "busy" report on telephone calls is often a source of annoyance to telephone users, and increases the company's expense and the operator's work.

The drawing at the top of this advertisement illustrates the test which the operator makes before giving the busy report.

When she receives your signal, she picks up the plug, as shown in the illustration, and is ready to serve you.

When you tell her the number, she touches the rim of the hole (known as the jack), where the called number is located.

If she hears a clicking sound, she knows the line is "busy" and so reports. If there is no sound the line is clear and she makes the connection.

It is easier and more natural for the operator to test the line than to give the busy report without making the test.

Should she tell you the line is busy, without first testing it, she knows you will call again in a few minutes, so her work is not lessened.

The operators are anxious to please you and you can help by having confidence in their reports and waiting a few minutes before calling a busy line again.

Telephone operators appreciate co-operation.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Of Unusual Social Interest

Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock one of the most interesting social events of the season took place when Mr. and Mrs. David G. Peel were at home to their friends of many years' standing, the occasion celebrating their golden wedding anniversary.

The rooms of the attractive home on West Fifth street were decorated with exquisite yellow flowers and the table in the dining room was overlaid with an embroidered cloth, a gift made for her grandmother by Miss Virginia Futrelle. A basket of yellow gladioli graced the center of the table and crystal candlesticks held unshaded yellow tapers. The color scheme of yellow carrying out the idea of the golden wedding celebration was used in the ices, cakes and mints.

Mrs. Peel received her guests wearing a gown in golden brown tones made on long straight lines. Mrs. Jacques Futrelle wore a model of blue georgette and Mrs. John Peel was gowned in peach chiffon. Miss Virginia's Futrelle's attractive costume was a becoming model of white chiffon.

A most interesting historical event in connection with this affair is that the date coincided with that of the battle of Atlanta when the families of this pioneer couple fled to Macon, afterward returning to Atlanta and holding the first house that was built here after the war. Mr. and Mrs. Peel were born and reared in this city, and their marriage took place at the family home of the bride on Irwin street, and was the culmination of a romance dating from childhood, for they resided next door to one another.

Mrs. Peel was formerly Miss Mary E. Thompson, member of a prominent pioneer family, and is quite an authority upon the history and development of the city. Mr. Peel is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Peel and is a member of the Pioneer School Boys of Atlanta and a cordial invitation was extended this distinguished group of residents together with their families, to be guests upon this auspicious occasion. A trio of residents who were guests at the marriage 50 years ago are Mrs. Mabel Lumpkin and Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Butler, who were also among the reception guests.

John T. Peel, well known Atlanta, and Mrs. Jacques Futrelle, an American writer of great note and ability, are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Peel, and their grandchildren are Miss Virginia Futrelle, who arrived yesterday from California to be present at this event; John Futrelle, Jr., and Richard Peel.

Miss Stein To Be Honored at Parties.

Many interesting affairs are being planned in honor of Miss Dorothy Stein, of Lancaster, Pa., the guest of Miss Mary Armstrong, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Gray, on Peachtree road. Miss Armstrong will compliment Miss Stein at tea during the coming week, the date to be announced later.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman-Seranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse, we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes. 'Use Mother's Friend' and our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait start today, and meanwhile write to Bradford-Regulator Co., Bk 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book, containing information every expectant mother should have. 'Mother's Friend' is sold by all drug stores—everywhere."

Miss Hunter Weds Mr. Moore At Ceremony in College Park

An interesting event of Wednesday evening was the marriage of Miss Mary Hunter and John Willis Moore, which was solemnized at the St. John Episcopal church in College Park, with the Rev. Horace R. Chase, rector of the church, officiating.

During the assembling of the guests, Mrs. Lester Brown, of Decatur, and Henry Robinson, of Augusta, gave an appropriate program of music on the organ and violin. The chancel and altar were banked with a profusion of massive palms and ferns interspersed with baskets of white roses and burning candelabra, forming a rich background for the bridal party.

Bridal Party.
First to enter the long aisle of the church were the ushers and groomsmen, including J. Wayne Moore, Jr., the groom's cousin; Horace R. Hunter, the bride's brother; Paul Berry and Beverly Haversham Rockwell.

Miss Jerry Cook, the bride's cousin, was the bridesmaid. She wore an attractive frock of peach-colored tulle made with tight bodice and full skirt. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Henry Robinson, of Augusta, was matron of honor and wore a costume of rose-colored tulle and carried a bouquet of suburban roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Frances Mason, of College Park, was dressed in apple green tulle and carried pink roses.

Lovely Bride.
The bride was given in marriage by her father, William Preston Hunter, and met at the altar by the groom and his best man, W. P. Hunter, Jr., brother of the bride.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of white georgette crepe fashioned along straight lines. Lovely rose point lace formed a lustrous effect and only trimming, the lace falling at the front neckline into a cascaded plait. Her bridal veil of delicate silk tulle was adjusted to her hair by a becoming headband of orange blossoms. She carried a graceful bouquet of white roses and showered with valley lilies.

Mr. Moore and his bride left during the evening for a short wedding trip.

Miss Lillian Wood Is Feted Visitor.

They were welcomed by members of the staff, Mrs. F. D. Holland, Mrs. J. G. Throver, Mrs. Melinda Fleming, Mrs. Nellie Fischer, Miss Berna Jerard, Mrs. Grace Bayard, Miss Louise Pappenheimer, and the Scouts.

They were all dressed in the attractive camp uniforms, Civitan blue and yellow ties with head bands to match. These bright colors flashing everywhere among the tall pine trees made a pretty scene and it was not long before the photographer was busy.

The swimming pool held the attention of all while the weekly water races were held. Then came the main event of the day—the dedication of the hut built by the Civitan club.

Visitors and campers gathered around this picturesque log building and in a few simple words W. T. Perkins presented the hut to the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. F. D. Holland in a very impressive manner accepted the gift and thanked the Civitans in behalf of the Scouts for their generosity and interest.

"The Pony Patrol," a group of the youngest Scouts who are occupying the hut, then sang their thanks in these words, composed by themselves:

"It's not easy to be a Girl Scout, We have hard things to do. It's not easy to keep our laws well. Everything is up to you— But wherever you may find us, We'll help you if we can. It's a good, good thing to be a Girl Scout At Camp Civitan."

We all love you dear Civitan club, You're indeed been our friend,

We thank you for this lovely wood-land And the hut down near the end— And wherever you may find us, We'll help you if we can, You're a great, great club thinks every Girl Scout, One of the best in the land.

A delicious buffet supper was served in Thornton hall, which is the dining and assembly building. After this all gathered around a large camp fire where a playlet, "Every Scout," was presented in true Scout style, after which many old and original camp songs were sung. The evening ended with the goodnight circle song with taps.

Miss Nina Stewart Weds Mr. Rasmussen At Lovely Ceremony

A wedding of cordial interest to many friends, was that of Miss Nina Stewart and Harold H. Rasmussen, which took place at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, July 21, at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. David Williamson Stewart, on Adams street, Decatur.

The home was decorated with silver vases and baskets of roses, snapdragons, gladioli, and varied color garden flowers.

Preceding the wedding, Miss Helen Schindler rendered a beautiful musical program on the piano.

The ceremony took place in the living room before an improvised altar of palms and ferns, with a large basket of white gladioli in the center. On either side were tall candelabra holding white tapers.

The first to enter was the maid of honor, Miss Doris Stewart, sister of the bride, wearing a lovely green tulle dress and carrying an old-fashioned bouquet of Columbia roses, argemone and swainsona.

Little Suzanne Stewart, niece of the bride, was the dainty flower girl, wearing a becoming frock of peach-colored crepe de chine, lace trimmed and hand embroidered in blue. She carried a small nosegay of pink roses, blue argemone and swainsona.

The bride entered the living room accompanied by her brother, L. M. Stewart, of Greenville, S. C. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man. The ceremony was most impressively performed by Rev. Marshall Woodson.

The bride's gown was an ensemble of toast-colored georgette crepe with this she wore a becoming hat to match. Her corsage was of purple orchids and valley lilies.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served.

Assisting Mrs. Stewart in entertaining her guests was the bride's mother, Mrs. Dottie Williamson Stewart; Miss Zula Stewart, Mrs. Clifford Henderson, and Mrs. Frank Jacobson.

Misses Julia and Harriet Henderson served punch. The bowl was placed in the center of the dining table, which was covered with a handsome madeira cloth over pink. The bowl was surrounded by a wreath of drenched shaded flowers combined with swainsona and maiden hair fern. Four silver candelsticks held unshaded pink candles. The mints were pink and white.

The bride's cake was placed on a side table and was beautifully embellished in pink roses and valley lilies. In the center was a miniature bride. During the morning Mr. Rasmussen and his bride left for a short wedding trip, after which they will return to Decatur for a short visit with the bride's mother, before going to Forgas Falls, Minn., to make their future home.

$2,000 DAMAGE DONE BY WAREHOUSE FIRE

Fire of undetermined origin started in a warehouse on the Fort McPherson reservation early Wednesday morning, and had gained considerable headway before engines arrived and brought the blaze under control. The warehouse was used to store condemned and reclaimed material and the damage was estimated at about $2,000.

According to the fire department report, the blaze was caused by defective wiring, but fort authorities believe that spontaneous combustion was responsible.

You may now stop at Grove Park Inn, Asheville, at $8.00 per day up, including bath. Fireproof and the finest resort hotel in the world.—(adv.)

The Storekeeper Becomes an Artist An Editorial by James Wallen

The man who determines to be a great artist submerges himself in his work. Like the dyer of fabrics, he is tinted with the very color of his labor.

Whistler was all artist, so were Rodin and Anatole France. This single-mindedness extends to merchants who think of their business as the art of collecting things of beauty and use and distributing them where they are needed and appreciated.

The late Marshall Field, of Chicago, and his protege, the pioneering Gordon Selfridge, of London, have expressed the true philosophy of the merchants in their life work. Such men make of storekeeping something more than a business—it is a vocation of high and noble character.

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose with purpose and tenacity have proved to the world that the South is a harbor for things of more than transient worth and that the fine art of storekeeping can be practiced in Atlanta with unbounded success.

When you pass through the welcoming doors of the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose store, you become the guest for whom a festival of merchandise has been prepared to be enjoyed as leisurely as you will.

The prophet's "seven watchmen who sit above in a high tower" could not be more zealous for this institution's good will than are its proprietors and store staff.

Establishment of employment offices in Atlanta directed by the United States department of labor is being planned according to announcement Wednesday by Mr. McGrath, in charge of the Atlanta office of the bureau. The employment offices will be operated under general direction of Cato Woolford, federal director of the United States labor bureau for Georgia.

These offices will be established as the result of a survey recently completed by Mr. McGrath. The survey was made by Mr. Jones, chief of the United States department of labor, who approved the plan. Mr. Jones will come to Atlanta next month to inspect conditions here.

The offices will provide employment for persons who are not now employed and will bring the unemployed in con-

—BY—

E. Phillips Oppenheim

There was a brief spell of uneasy silence. The servants, with whom the room was overfilled, stood like statues behind the chairs, their faces without doubt discomposured.

"There are some things the governor can't know more about than any one else," he declared a little awkwardly. "If you're thinking of the socialist blackmail theory, they've been a pretty long time showing their hand, what? Besides, forewarned is forearmed. I've nothing to do with mysterious strangers nowadays, male or female. If you think I'm taking risks, what about this? My servant sleeps in my dressing room and I have bought another car for night work. I haven't been in a taxi since I can remember, and my runs in town are pretty restricted, I can assure you."

His aunt listened with unchanging expression.

"You are very clever in your own generation, Samuel," she acknowledged, "but you cannot believe that you are so clever as the brain which plotted against my boy, which removed him from us in the middle of the country without a word of warning or without leaving a trace behind. Can your intelligence prevail against an intelligence which has foiled the whole of Scotland Yard? If those who trust Ernest desire it, you will go too."

There was a further period of uneasy silence. The domestic proceeded to the service of a new course. Samuel and his uncle both looked startled, the former almost scared. The corners of Paul's mouth seemed to have crept a little higher up into a curve of faint amusement. Samuel raised his glass to his lips and drained its contents. He felt the glow of it in his veins.

"I've no enemies," he declared obstinately. "I have done no one any harm. I shall live as I choose."

For his aunt all interest in the subject appeared to have passed. She had relapsed into her usual impassivity.

Judith had just returned from an early morning ride in the park a few weeks later when Rhodes' card was brought to her. She interviewed him in one of the smaller and lesser used reception rooms.

"Your ladyship will pardon the liberty, I hope," he begged, rising at her entrance, "but to tell you the truth there was just a word you said to me one day in St. James' street which I have never been able to get out of my mind."

"It hasn't apparently helped you much," she remarked.

"Not up to the present," he admitted.

"You are no nearer a solution?" she asked.

"I fear not," he confessed. "Our blackmail theory seems to have become impossible. The 20,000 pounds reward has now been offered for all these months, and nothing has come of it."

Judith glanced at the clock on the mantelpiece.

"I am willing to talk with you for hours," she said. "It is likely to be of the slightest assistance. On the other hand, I am rather late as it is for an appointment."

"I will not keep you for long, Lady Judith," the detective promised.

"Would you mind telling me, is that not a portrait of your grandfather Israel?" he went on, drawing her attention to a painting upon the wall.

She looked at it carefully.

"It is," she replied.

"I wonder whether you have any where in the house a photograph or picture of him when he was comparatively a young man—say 20 years old?" he continued.

"I dare say. What do you want it for?"

"The man hesitated. He seemed to make up his mind, however, to confide in his questioner.

"I have been making some inquiries," he explained, "about the child of your Uncle Cecil and the daughter of Heggs, the keeper. I have never been entirely satisfied as to the evidence of his death. Now, if he were alive, he might very well be a secret enemy of your family."

Judith considered the matter for a moment.

"It seems rather far-fetched but, of course, it might be so," she admitted. "I have always understood that the child died at the same time as his mother."

"A child did die," he observed, "and was buried in the same grave as Heggs' daughter. The evidence that it was her child, however, is not to my mind absolutely conclusive. The Heggs family at that time was desperately anxious to have the whole thing forgotten."

"Let me see," Judith remarked, "if he had lived he would be about 30 years old, wouldn't he?"

"Just about that," the detective assented. "Your grandfather was a man of very strongly marked features and a great personality. It is just possible that his grandson might resemble him. I have several photographs of your Uncle Cecil but he seems to have been a young man of rather negative characterization."

"I'll go and see if I can find a photograph," she promised. "Do you mind waiting? I may be some little time."

"Not in the least," he assured her. She left the room. The detective turned on the electric light which was fitted in the frame of the great oil painting, and stood opposite it for some time. The artist—a celebrated man—had painted a striking picture but had shown his utter little kindness. The harshness of Israel Fernham's large features, the firm, almost cruel lines of his mouth, the level gaze of his calculating eyes, were all reproduced here without flattery or toning down. It might well have been the portrait of a man of great ability but there was a lack of humanity, almost respectability, about the face which made it absolutely forbidding and which accounted for its being hung in one of the smaller rooms of the house. Rhodes studied it for a long time with his hands in his pockets whistling softly to himself. Then he turned out the light and when Judith returned was pursuing a volume of Punch in a distant easy chair.

"I have found a photograph," she told him. "It is a little faded. Otherwise I fancy it must have been a good likeness."

He examined it thoughtfully for a few minutes. Then, with it still in his hand, he turned up the light underneath the frame and studied the picture once again. Judith stood by his side.

"I prefer the photograph," she said, decidedly. "We none of us like the painting."

He laid the former down without further reference to it.

"I don't think I need keep you any longer, Lady Judith," he remarked after a brief pause. "It has been very kind of you to spare me so much of your time."

"Has it helped you in any way, the photograph?" she inquired.

"It has helped me to this extent,"

he explained. "You must remember that I am in the very desperate—I am afraid I must add, humiliating situation of being without the slightest clue as to your brother's whereabouts or condition if he is still alive. I am driven therefore to work according to your own advice, on theory only. If by any chance, this son of Heggs' daughter and your Uncle Cecil should be still alive and should have inherited—forgive me—the somewhat fierce and unforgiving disposition of your grandfather, he might be a secret enemy of your house. If heredity counts for anything I know what he should be like."

He took his departure, but Judith, although a few minutes before she had been in a hurry, lingered in the room.

She took up the photograph and looked at it intently. It was a stern face even in youth, strong and without kindness, but it lacked the cruelty which the great artist had found in Israel, and perpetuated upon his canvas.

A servant opened the door and made a respectful announcement.

"Lord Amberleys is here, your ladyship."

Amberleys entered close on his heels. Judith glanced from him to the clock.

"My dear Freddy," she exclaimed, as the servant retired, "I am most frightfully sorry, but I had someone else to see me and the time slipped away. I won't be more than a quarter of an hour changing."

"No hurry at all dear," he assured her, raising his fingers to his lips with somewhat clumsy gallantry. "I say, what a ripping picture of your grandfather—bit of an autocrat, I should think."

"I am sorry he died before I was born," Judith sighed. "I should like to have known him. He had some very fine qualities. This is a photograph of him in earlier life. I wonder does it remind you of anyone?"

He looked at it without much show of interest.

"No one particularly," he remarked carelessly. "Strikes me as being a bit like that chemist chap down at your works."

Judith almost snatched the photograph back. For a few seconds she gazed at it with an absorption which was extraordinary. The fugitive idea which she had failed to grasp was suddenly materialized. It was there beyond a doubt—the inflexion of the mouth, the slight bulge of the forehead, the level eyes.

Judith hurried to her room, but before she commenced to change she telephoned to Scotland Yard and ascertained that Mr. Rhodes had not yet returned. She left a message for him, and just as she was ready to descend the bell rang. She took off the receiver.

"Is that Lady Judith?" a voice inquired.

"Yes," she replied.

"Rhodes speaking. You asked for me."

"Yes. I hope you don't mind," Judith said. "It is really a rather ridiculous thing to ring you up about, but looking at that photograph again after you left I suddenly realized who it reminded me of—someone you never heard of, I dare say, and whom I only met the other day."

"I should be interested to hear," was the measured rejoinder.

"It reminds me just a little," she confided, "of a man named Paul—Sir Lawrence Paul. He is the chief chemist down at our works."

There was a moment's silence, then a deprecating little cough from the other end of the wire.

"Very interesting, Lady Judith," Rhodes admitted. "I am afraid, however, that Sir Lawrence Paul's antecedents are too well known for this to be anything more than a chance likeness. I shall take the liberty of seeing you again in a few days."

Judith replaced the receiver and joined her impatient cavalier. Even he noticed, in a few moments, that she was somewhat distraught.

"Nothing wrong?" he ventured.

"She came down to earth," he murmured. "My dear man, no," she exclaimed.

"My visitor this morning was the detective who is working on Ernest's case. Talking about it always affects me just a little."

He laid his hands upon hers.

"Sorry I said a word," he apologized.

"There is no news, I suppose?"

"None," she answered, with a little sigh. "I am beginning to believe that there never will be any."

INSTALLMENT VII.

The Sword Suspended.

The issue of "X-Nutra" formed a new epoch in the commercial progress of the great house of Fernham & Co., Ltd. For the first time within their experience of launching a fresh, specific, free sample became unnecessary and advertising superfluous.

The preparation had scarcely been on the market a week when, in response to an urgent message of enquiry, it made his way to Joseph's private office. The latter was standing there in the midst of a maze of correspondence, his morning clear as yet unclouded, his manner excited, but perplexed.

"We've gone and done a nice thing," Sir Lawrence, he exclaimed. "They had to telephone up to the house for me to come down at once, half an hour before my usual time. Do you know what our orders for 'Neurotra' amounted to during the last four days?"

"I have heard no figures," was the calm reply. "I understood that it was going well."

"You're wrong for the home trade alone," Joseph declared portentously. "amount to 28,000 bottles. The export trade hasn't commenced yet. Do you know you're making a fortune, young fellow?"

Paul raised his eyebrows at the familiarity, but Joseph was too agitated to heed him.

"The trade will have to be rationed," the former decided. "I cannot possibly guarantee more than 5,000 bottles a week."

New York, July 22.—(C)—Reactionary price movements held sway in today's stock market, which ended with a net loss of 10.40 points.

After a new high record for the year was set by the Standard Oil of New Jersey, other strong spots included American Tobacco, Universal Pipe and Conference Tobacco, and the American International Can. Fleischmann's was up to a new high record in anticipation of a permanent policy regarding the payment of extra dividends.

The success of the harvest, however, was not expected to be a factor in the market.

lumbered by a top-heavy technical position, offered only feeble resistance to selling pressure. Scarcity of call money, resulting in the maintenance of stiffer rates, halted constructive operations and enabled speculators for a time to limit their activities with little opposition.

Trade developments were mainly unfavorable, but were ignored in the rush of traders to take profits and the concentration of professional sledding in the standard leaders. Consolidated Tires, which had been a favorite of investors for its generous distribution of dividends by the Goodrich Rubber company, another increase in weekly car loadings, optimistic reports regarding steel operations and the trend of steel prices and estimates of a further falling off in crude oil prices from 1 to almost 4 points. Public Utility shares, particularly the gas company issues, also found hard sledding. Recessions of a point

While the day's setback embraced all representative departments of the industrial list and most of the leading railways, several stocks moved counter to the general trend and closed the day up 1 to 3 points higher. International Paper, responding to the bullishness as regards the revaluation of purchasing power of the agricultural communities crossed 111 to the highest price since the post war deflation.

The stock closed 12 points higher at 1137.

Restoration of Goodrich common stock to a four dollar annual dividend basis caused a rally in that issue, but failed to stimulate buying of the other tire shares. U. S. Rubber

Foreign exchange trading was devoid of features. Demand sterling hovered around $4.85½ with slightly lower levels prevailing for French francs, Italian lire and the Scandinavian currencies, which reacted after a recent rise to new high levels.

First Stages of Bull Market Will Be Seen During the Autumn Months.

New York, July 22.—Profit taking and short selling caused the stock market today to be heavy in spots. For the past few days the market has appeared tired after its daily advances to a new high average price. It would not be surprising if the reaction went further. However, as pointed out yesterday, any setback is only expected to be temporary. Soft coal, New England textiles, railroad equipment and sugar industries are all poor. The automobile industry has hit its peak for this year. All other lines of trade, however, are fair to good with indications of improvement in the late summer or early autumn. When the average price of 50 representative stocks has recently made a new high record for all time there has been no enthusiasm to follow through. On the other hand, on declines there has been no selling pressure. This condition indicates first that the public is not in a buying mood to follow the market after it has advanced into new high ground; and next, that the big people who are heavily loaded with stocks do not begin to show seasonal improvement business in general will feel better and hence more inclined to follow the stock market if it gets into new sign ground. The feeling in the best informed quarters here is that the final stages of the bull market which has been witnessed on and off since April of last year will be seen during the autumn months with the stock market very active and with real distribution going on at that time. Apparently the recent sensational advances which have occurred in crude rubber have not hurt all manufacturers of rubber goods, including tires. The renewal rate was 4 per cent against 32 yesterday with 44 per cent touched by noon the same as the high late yesterday.

Directors of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. (E. I. du Pont) in 1925, the first year of the company's quarterly dividend of $1, the first in the middle of 1921, showing sales for the first half of the year at $90,400,000, against $80,137,000 for the first half of 1924. This surplus applicable to dividends for the common stock was $7,166,000 or the first half of 1925, equal to $10

Chrysler announced price cuts on three-cylinder cars today running from $70 to $130. Predictions were made here today that within the next 10 years the automobile industry would be "almost dead on its feet."

Stocks of finished autos in the hands of consumers were reported today the smallest in many years. The past week in the steel and iron industry has witnessed some improvement in buying and some increase in mill operations with July likely to show the steel mills operating at 60 per cent of capacity on the average against 41.5 reported for July of 1924.

Wall street is mixed as to what to mission it will be effected on a basis that includes large promotion profits.

Water Consumption Records Of Atlanta Broken in June; Great Gain Shown Over May

Big Jump in Receipts Results—Long Drought Causes Increase, States W. Zode Smith.

A record water consumption, with correspondingly high receipts, is shown in figures for June, made public Wednesday by W. Zode Smith, general manager of waterworks. Consumption for the month, in addition to setting a new high record, showed a marked increase over figures for May of this year and for June of 1924.

A total of $74,700,000 gallons of water were used by Atlantans during last month, Mr. Smith said, as compared with $60,220,000 in May, and $34,697,000 in June of last year.

Receipts Show Increase.

In addition to making new records for June, receipts from water were higher during the first six months of the year than during any corresponding period, and lead to predictions that the water department will have a record-smashing year in every respect.

"The unprecedented consumption of water is due largely to the long drought which has visited Atlanta," Mr. Smith said. "Of course, with a constantly growing city, there is a continual natural increase in water consumption, irrespective of the season or weather conditions."

"However, despite the dry spell and the normal increase in consumption, we have been able to supply all demands with our present intake, supplemented by a rip-rap dam across the Chattahoochee a short distance below the intake. Lack of adequate means to reach some sections of the city has led to low pressure in those districts, but steps now are being taken to remedy this handicap."

"The water department has had the biggest year in history to date, and every indication leads me to think that we will have a record-breaking year in every respect. During the first six months of this year, $856,432.68 has been collected in water receipts, or the largest amount during any similar period.

Biggest Year in History.

"I do not remember any month which has topped June's record for water consumption, and in both consumption and receipts, we expect to have the biggest year in history. The records show that during June, water consumption jumped approximately 41,000,000 gallons over that of May, while the June mark for this year is about 60,500,000 gallons over that for June, 1924."

"We are installing many new meters daily, and that is indicative of the fact that Atlanta's population is increasing steadily. Our records prove that there has been a monthly increase in the installation of meters since the first of the year, and 257 new services were installed during June."

Mr. Smith gave out the following comparative figures for water receipts, showing the steady increase:

June $14,847.79 $128,724
May 143,367.15 137,476
April 331,351.58 138,693

Coolidge Get Taste Of Stormy Weather In Mayflower Cruise

Swampscott, Mass., July 22.—(AP)—President Coolidge got a taste of stormy weather cruising aboard the Mayflower today on a trip along the coast to Pemberton, south of Boston, where he was guest for half an hour at an outing of druggists and paid a fleeting visit to a cottage on the shore where he was his summer home.

The president, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, their son, John, Senator Curtis of Kansas, their house guest, and Secretary Sanders, boarded the yacht early in the afternoon. It was raining at the time, but it was not until the yacht had nosed its way into Massachusetts bay in the face of a stiff wind from the southeast that a choppy sea was encountered.

The Mayflower rode the waves easily and real discomfort was not experienced by any members of the presidential party until it was forced to take to a barge to land at Hull. The little craft pitched and tossed as it made its way to and from shore, a landing being made with difficulty.

DETECTIVES RECOVER THREE STOLEN AUTOS

Three stolen automobiles have been recovered by Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole and Detective A. S. Smith, it was announced Wednesday night.

The cars belong to Samuel L. Hewlett, prominent Atlanta attorney, of 87 East Fourteenth street; Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., and Simon Bloomingberg, of 15 North Moreland avenue.

Miss Florence Hewlett, daughter of Mr. Hewlett, is said to have parked her father's heavy coach on Peachtree street near Ellis street last afternoon while she went to a movie. Upon her return the machine was missing.

The car was recovered by detectives early Wednesday morning on Clark street near Washington street.

The light cars, car owned by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, was stolen Tuesday in front of 101 Marietta street. It was recovered Wednesday on Sixth street near Peachtree street.

The coupe owned by Simon Bloomingberg was recovered on Cone street near Walton street. The car was stolen on July 18, in front of the Bloomingberg residence.

Dr. Geo. S. Kahn is now Permanently Located with Kahn-Sherrill Optical Co.

Save the surface and you save all

Truth has its uses, even in selling paint!

Leaving out the customary brag of paint advertising, Tripod puts its case to you like this: Tripod paint is made no better than any one of five other honest and famous brands:

It sells for little, if any, less than any first-rate paint just naturally has to cost these days:

And it will only cover about the same surface, two coats, well brushed in, as proper paint usually does.

But tripod paint does one thing beyond other paints: It will last longer, and stay good looking, in this southern climate.

If that is true, the argument ought to be about over, where you and your paint job are concerned. It is true.

PULLMAN SURCHARGE REMOVAL IS FAVORED

After discussion lasting almost two hours and involving heated arguments on both sides, the house committee on railroads Wednesday night recommended a bill which would remove the Pullman surcharge in the state of Georgia.

Opponents of the bill were given 20 minutes in which to state their objections. This time was almost entirely consumed by railroad attorneys who attempted to show that any such law would not be valid and would be reversed by the interstate commerce commission. The committee went into executive session and after a discussion of an hour, a vote was taken and the bill was recommended by vote of 9 to 8.

At the request of the author, action on a bill regarding railroad crossings was deferred until next week. The committee advised house bill No. 404, relating to freight rates. The subcommittee appointed to report on house bill No. 143, requested more time and was instructed to have its report ready at the next meeting. Action was deferred on the railroad police bill. A bill providing for sale of unclaimed freight was approved.

Ruhr Evacuation Warmly Praised By Stresemann

Berlin, July 22.—(AP)—Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, speaking today in the reichstag on the German reply to France's note on the security proposals, said there were still some important points outstanding, especially with respect to arbitration treaties and the position that Germany is to take within the league of nations.

"We cannot accept," he went on, "that in arbitration proceedings the second should simultaneously be the umpire. We also reject the attempt to substitute the objective opinion of individual states for arbitration."

The minister was confident that further discussions would lead to positive results. He expressed satisfaction at the good will shown by both France and Belgium in completely evacuating the Ruhr before August 16, and the French premier's declaration that the Duesseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort area shortly would be evacuated, within the time set for the treaty.

Here Stresemann exhorted the German people to overcome the mistrust still existing in certain quarters regarding the allied promises to Germany, and he added:

"The peace regarding alleged German defaults in the disarmament agreement strengthens the view that there is no ground for the further occupation of northern Rhineland."

"The reich government has put it beyond doubt," the minister continued, "that it is prepared to carry out the exceedingly hard conditions appertaining to disarmament so far as possible. We have appointed a commission with special plenipotentiary powers. What the allies are entitled to demand by the Versailles treaty has already been partly performed and will still be performed in part."

"The great problems of the present are these: That neither in France nor Germany can economic distrust be removed without the cooperation of the great world powers. Large sections of the other European nations have an interest in these powers intervening for the reconstruction of Europe; they want to see a peaceful Europe."

COMMITTEE APPROVES MOTOR BUS MEASURE

The motor bus bill, designed to place all bus operators in the state under control of the state public service commission, Wednesday was given approval of general judiciary committee No. 1 of the house of representatives.

The measure was amended, however, in such a way that all existing city ordinances affecting busses will be unaffected. Bus lines less than 25 miles in length are excepted from its provisions.

Consideration of the motor bus regulatory bill by the finance committee of the senate will be continued on Wednesday night at the Henry Grady hotel. An amendment has been offered to the bill to handle the jitney situation in Savannah, Atlanta and Marietta, as it was suggested to the committee that the bill, as it stood, might undo city ordinances in those cities regulating jitneys. The committee read the bill Wednesday night and heard from supporters of the measure.

ASKS POSTMASTER FOR FEW THOUSAND IN DEAD LETTERS

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—A resident of Tomahawk, Wis., has written Postmaster General E. A. Tamm in the newspapers that thousands of dollars are found in the dead letters. "I'm just thinking," he wrote, "that it is God's will that I could have a small part of this—only $80,000 or $70,000. I surely thank you unhesitatingly for the kind favor by sending me a bank draft within ten days. May the dear Lord bless us more and more at all times."

BRITISH ADMIRALTY WINS CONTENTION ON MORE CRUISERS

London, July 22.—(AP)—All the morning newspapers today say that the cabinet crisis over the cruiser question ended in a victory for the admiralty in the newspapers.

The admiralty's modified demand for the building of four vessels this year, and three next year.

DETROIT IS SWEEPED BY $500,000 BLAZE

Detroit, July 22.—(AP)—Fire swept the Gladstone-Linwood avenue residential district late this afternoon, destroying seven apartment buildings and one residence before being brought under control. It was placed at $500,000. Two hundred families were made homeless.

A crowd hindered the efforts of firemen, and a number of fire engines were unable to penetrate the throng and get within fighting distance of the blaze.

CHILDREN'S CODE BILLS APPROVED

Favorable action on three measures of the children's code commission was taken Wednesday night by the training school committee of the house. The three bills acted on constitute the last remaining bills sponsored by the code commission before this committee.

Bills reported favorably Wednesday night are: The juvenile court measure, by substitute; the compulsory attendance bill, and the boys' training school bill.

The committee also favorably reported a bill by Malone, of Bibb, creating a training school for delinquent negro girls. The bill carries an appropriation of $25,000 for the purpose of acquiring land and erecting or remodeling necessary buildings, and also $10,000 for maintenance for the first year.

The State Federation of Colored Women's Clubs originated the bill and has been active in its support. It is understood that the federation is prepared to meet the $10,000 appropriation for maintenance with a similar amount which it has raised. The site for the proposed training school is to be decided upon after passage of the bill, and is to be chosen by the board of managers, as provided in the bill.

Ex-Governor Hugh M. Dorsey and Miss Rhoda Kaufman, secretary of the state department of public welfare, were among those urging favorable action on the bill.

MORTUARY

A Word of Comfort.

Continuous activity begets fatigue, because it is a mighty task for the heart to pump the blood throughout your body as you sit or stand. Times of release from tension are necessary to permit refreshment and the storing of reserve energy.

So with the life of the spirit. Do not give rein to your doubts and temptation to rebel at your fate. Simply relax your intense efforts and be still for a while in the presence of God. He will give you what you need.

—Frederick G. Budlong.
